Larkspur Is Asked To Delay On Tax Deal

Marin County supervisors urged Larkspur officials yesterday to postpone action on a proposed agreement that would permit The Tamalpais retirement center to avoid paying taxes to all agencies except the city.

On a unanimous vote, supervisors also instructed Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino to investigate "all other possibilities" which could block tax exempt status for the luxury retirement center.

As reported Monday, the county assessor's office has granted "welfare tax exemption" status to the $10.5 million retirement center which sits atop Bon Air Hill in Larkspur.

The building has not been officially removed from the tax rolls yet and supervisors agreed Tuesday to appeal to the state Board of Equalization to reverse the decision.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said yesterday that the city council on Wednesday will consider signing an agreement with the owners, in which they will pay the city annually an "in lieu" sum of money equal to the amount (about $38,000) the residence would have had to pay in city taxes.

Some 13 other agencies, including the county, will together lose about $260,000 annually in tax revenues.

The city has a lever in the matter since the permit granted when the center was approved by Larkspur contains a clause which says it will remain on the tax rolls.

By signing the agreement, the city would be waiving that requirement in exchange for $38,000 annually.

School District Told To Drop 'God' Song

Supreme Court Ruling Is Guide, Judge Says

By ERNEST MURPHY

SANTA ROSA — Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. yesterday ordered the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District to stop using a song called "Thanksgiving" in its kindergarten classes.

The decision came in a suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of 5-year-old Sarah Langford, a kindergarten student at Waldo Rohnert Elementary School in Rohnert Park.

At issue were the song's words:

"Thank you for the world so sweet;

"Thank you for the food we eat;

"Thank you for the birds that sing;

"Thank you, God, for everything."

Judge Murphy agreed with the ACLU's contention that the song represented an unconstitutional "establishment of religion" by the state, prohibited in the first amendment.

The Santa Rosa judge based his decision on the 1962 U.S. Supreme Court case, Engel vs. Vitale. Judge Murphy said that the 1962 order, "squarely held that the inclusion of a classroom prayer composed by state officials in a daily program for public schools violated the first amendment's prohibition against making of a law 'respecting an establishment of religion,' even though the prayer was denominationally neutral and its observance on the part of the students was voluntary."

Judge Murphy acknowledged that the Supreme Court decision was "one of the most unpopular in the nation's history," and that it "caused widespread discontent among the general public."

"Whatever its standing may be in a popularity poll," Murphy stated, "the rule announced in Engel is a constitutional pronouncement by the highest court in the land and it forms, as it must, the basis upon which (this) case must be decided."

James H. Davidson, superintendent of the school district, said that no decision has been made on whether to appeal Judge Murphy's ruling.

The district board of trustees will decide what to do next, Davidson said.

The school district argued that use of the song was permissible because it came from a state-approved textbook and because Sarah was allowed to refrain from the singing.

"Each of us enjoys the rght," Judge Murphy concluded, "to practice the religion of our choice, or to practice none at all.

"We must never forget that the ideal of religious freedom was one of the impelling forces in this country's early history, and particularly in the formal setting of the public classroom, any governmental intrusion must be resisted."

The controversy over the song began on Feb. 5, when the ACLU notified the district that it would sue unless use of the song was dropped.

The district refused to heed the threat and the suit was filed.

Prices Rise Again, But More Slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for steel and gasoline pushed the wholesale price index up 1.5 per cent in May, but the rate of increase shows signs of tapering off, the government said today.

The wholesale price index, used by economists to indicate consumer price trends, was 155.0 in May for all commodities, 16.4 per cent above the May index a year ago. The index for industrial commodities rose 2.7 per cent. Prices for farm products and processed foods and feeds dropped 1.3 per cent.

Metals made the largest contribution to the increase in the industrial commodities index. Steel mill products rose 7.9 per cent while price quotes for scrap iron and steel declined.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said prices were higher in May for man-made fiber textile products, apparel, textile house furnishings, and miscellaneous textile products. Prices also were higher for household and commercial furniture, appliances, dinnerware, household flatware, floor coverings, and metal household containers.

The only industrial commodity group showing a decline was lumber and wood products, reflecting price drops for plywood and lumber. Prices for agriculture-related commodities declined for the third month in a row.

Smooth Sailing So Far On Giant County Budget

Marin County's proposed $52.2 million budget remained virtually untouched yesterday during the first day of hearings by the county board of supervisors meeting at Civic Center.

The board yesterday considered about 15 departmental requests and — in all but one case — adopted the recommendations of County Administrator John F. Barrows, who prepared the spending plan.

Some $33,500 was added to the budget, though half that amount was for routine adjustments such as pay increases necessitated by a new federal minimum wage law.

The budget, as proposed by Barrows, calls for a tax rate of about $2.465 per $100 assessed valuation, down from this fiscal year's $2.58 rate. The reduced tax rate is possible because preliminary estimates show that the assessed valuation of property in the county is up an average of 13 per cent.

The public defender's budget provided the only major difference between what the department requested and what Barrows recommended.

Public Defender Harold J. Truett sought to add four new attorneys, one additional investigator and two typists to his 18-member staff.

Barrows countered that the workload did not justify the increases and recommended two new attorneys and one typist.

After lengthy debate, supervisors accepted Barrows' recommendation and added the additional investigator for an increase in the budget of about $16,500.

The public defender's budget now stands at $557,328, up from the current year's spending program of $395,365.

A breakdown of other budgets shows:

Egyptians Continue Nixon Cheers

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — Millions of Egyptians, traveling by camel, donkey, oxcart and foot, left their work in the fields to honor President Nixon as a new friend and peacemaker on a campaign style train ride through the Nile Valley.

Nixon described himself as "overwhelmed" by the massive show of esteem for him and First Lady Pat Nixon.

It was "a magnificient reception," Nixon told newsmen on the train when asked his reaction to the throngs that gathered along the 130 miles of tracks that carried him and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat from Cairo to the Mediterrean port of Alexandria.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, estimated on his own that 3½ million persons saw Nixon during the 3½ hour ride from Cairo to Alexandria's Ras El Tin Palace where the Nixons will stay during their overnight stay.

Egyptian security officials gave a similar crowd estimate to Hermann Eilts, U.S. ambassador to Egypt.

Nixon and Sadat rode side-by-side on the train's observation platform. Nixon had expected crowds but he began swinging his head from side to side in disbelief as the dimensions of the crowd and its emotions gripped him.

The two presidents used the snail-paced ride to discuss Geneva negotiations to reach a permanent peace in the Mideast. They told newsmen they agreed Arab leaders should hold what Sadat called a "little summit" before meeting with Israel.

"Before going to a summit conference, a number of leaders representing different points of view should have bilateral discussions," Nixon said. In response to questions, he said this need not apply to Israel.

Everywhere along the train route there were signs of the changing Egyptian-U.S. relations that had been hostile for nearly two decades until Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger began his peace missions six months ago that set the stage for Nixon's five-nation tour.

Kissinger, who since his resignation threat Tuesday in Austria has stayed in the background so that Nixon might reap the honors, received a separate burst of applause when he got off the train in Alexandria.

At one point along the route, at Kafr El Zayat, one of the thousands of children who watched the train pass, 7-year-old Sahar Mohammad, said she had never actually heard of Nixon. Asked if she had heard of the United States, she replied, "Yes, they are the war people."

"No, no, no," her mother Fat'hia hastily corrected. "Now we are friends."

At Tanta, about half way between Cairo and Alexandria, trucks with loudspeakers explained to the crowds that the United States is now Egypt's friend and that this is the reason Nixon's pictures are everywhere.

"We greet Mr. Nixon with love, appreciation and fellow-

McCarthy Moves To Oust Moretti

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Leo McCarthy decided today to seek an immediate showdown vote on the Assembly floor to replace Bob Moretti as speaker of the lower house.

The decision to force a confrontation with Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., a top lieutenant to Moretti, came after McCarthy and his supporters counted their votes and agreed they had sufficient strength to topple Moretti.

Moretti, who last week was defeated in his bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, had refused to resign the speaker's post until Brown rounded up enough votes to succeed him.

Both McCarthy and Brown are liberal Democrats from San Francisco.

Chief's Condition Remains Critical

UNION CITY (UPI) — Police Chief William Cann, who was shot Tuesday night in a Catholic church, was listed in critical condition but with vital signs stable today at Washington Hospital in Fremont.

Cann served on the San Anselmo police force as a patrolman from June 1963 to November 1964 when he resigned to take a post in Novato where he served as sergeant until 1969.

Transit System To Carry Bikes

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Patrons of the AC Transit system will be able to take their bicycles on specially designed buses this summer, but they'll have to pay an extra 25-cent fare.

Bus interiors on routes to Tilden Park in the hills above Berkeley will be changed so they can carry 10 bicycles and 30 passengers.

Remiro, Little Are Denied Trial Change

OAKLAND (UPI) — Two Symbionese Liberation Army "soldiers" accused of killing a school official today were denied a request to move their trial from Alameda County.

Superior Judge William J. McGuiness said there was no reason to think that Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24, would be denied a fair trial because of adverse publicity.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hikes Fuel Costs

PARIS (UPI) — The French government today announced a broad price increase for the fuels that run homes and industries as part of an austerity program to contain inflation and cut the gaping balance of payments deficit.

Industry Minister Michel d'Ornano said that in addition to higher gas, electricity, fuel and coal prices, French homes next winter can be heated only to a maximum temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

The restrictions aimed at cutting down on imports of costly Arab oil came less than 24 hours after new President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced steep increases in corporate and income taxes. French parliament approval is virtually certain.

D'Ornano said at a news conference the government decided to hike the prices of coal 5 per cent, gas 10 per cent, electricity 3 to 10 per cent, home heating fuel 3½ per cent and industrial heavy fuel 10 per cent.

Something Extra

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors' cars and trucks will cost an average $118 more beginning Monday, but the giant automaker says the car buyer will be getting something more for the extra money.

GM announced yesterday that steel-belted radial tires, a high energy ignition system and power steering will become standard equipment on many models. Previously, these items were optional.

GM said the latest pricing action was not actually an increase, and the Cost of Living Council agreed, saying it's been permissible from the start of price controls to change optional equipment to standard.

Guerrilla Fire

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Arab guerrillas fought an hour and 40 minute gunbattle with Israeli soldiers and residents of the northern Galilee communal settlement of Shamir today, the military command said.

The command said three women settlers and the three guerrillas were killed in a shootout in a field where bee hives were kept just outside the settlement.

Military sources said two of the women killed, ages 55 and 28, were residents of the settlement and the third was a 22-year-old volunteer from New Zealand.

Charge Looms In Hearst Tape

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The manager of radio station KPFK has refused to turn over to federal authorities the original of a tape recording by Patricia Hearst, and may be cited for contempt of court.

Lewis

Will Lewis, 42, was brought before U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk yesterday following his refusal to turn over the tape and other material to a federal grand jury.

The judge, who had earlier denied a motion by the station's lawyer to dismiss a subpoena for the materials, ordered Lewis to return Monday for a contempt hearing.

Lewis said that although the station provided the FBI with a recorded copy of the tape, the original is "source material." To turn it over to law enforcement officers would violate the journalistic principle of confidentiality of sources, he argued.

Before the grand jury, Lewis said he cited the protection of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Amendments to the Constitution.

Peron Gets Way

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The entire Argentine cabinet resigned last night to give President Juan D. Peron a free hand to reorganize the government after he hastily withdrew his own threat to quit.

The 78-year-old president said he would step down but changed his mind hours later when crowds of up to 100,000 workers converged upon the city's central Plaza de Mayo to shout support for him.

Peron took no immediate action on the subsequent move by all eight members of the cabinet to submit their resignations to help him better deal with a rising tide of strikes, shortages of consumer goods, and violence between rightists and leftists.

"When I came to this country, it was to unite and not to promote disunity among Argentines," Peron said in a radio and television address.

"If I find that this sacrifice is in vain I will not hesitate one instant in ceding this position to someone who can occupy it with better possibilities."

More Arrests

BELFAST (UPI) — The British army, carrying out a crackdown on Protestant extremist groups suspected of murdering Roman Catholics, arrested seven men near Dungannon, 32 miles west of Belfast, early today after men were seen loading arms into a car, the army said.

An Army spokesman said a patrol saw four men loading arms into a car and fired warning shots when they tried to flee. The four took refuge in a house and were then detained. Three other men were detained in a follow up search. All seven were handed over to the police for questioning, the spokesman said.

The Army began preparing its new crackdown on Protestant extremist groups on the basis of captured documents which disclosed the names of leaders and the command structure of the Protestant organizations, army sources said.

A young man set himself afire while planting a gasoline bomb in Londonderry Wednesday night, a army spokesman said.

Leadership Talks

ROME (UPI) — President Giovanni Leone today completed urgent consultations with political leaders on choice of a premier-designate to try to form a government capable of halting inflation and violence.

Politicians said Leone's decision could come later today.

Fanfani called for a "more tranquil confrontation" with the other political parties, unions and business organizations to reexamine the Christian Democratic program.

ENTERTAINER — Miss Souhair Zaki, an Egyptian belly dancer, was one of the entertainment highlights last night at a state dinner in Cairo for President and Mrs. Nixon.

(UPI Telephoto)

Belly Dancer Gyrates For Nixon, Kissinger

CAIRO (UPI) — Souhair Zaki, who calls herself the "ambassadress of love," twirled and gyrated in front of President Nixon and then turned her attentions to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Nixon slapped his knee, threw back his head and joined Egypt's top society in laughter last night as the belly dancer went through her sinuous motions after a state dinner in the plush gardens of Cairo's Koubbeh Palace.

The President turned to a smiling Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the two men began to whisper to one another.

Souhair then performed for Kissinger, who has seen belly dancers before. She ran her fingers through his curly brown hair while he beamed and appeared quite composed.

Security Absent For Nixon Visit

CAIRO (UPI) — The most astonishing thing about the President's massive welcome in Cairo was the lack of security —no barricades, no soldiers — in a country which only months ago considered the United States its most bitter enemy second only to Israel.

The huge crowds thronging the streets of the Egyptian capital showed incredible enthusiasm for an American president whose popularity has fallen to near-record lows in his own country.

But even more astounding was the unusual absence of security precautions for the visiting presidential entourage. Wherever President Nixon went, huge crowds flowed into the streets, greeting him with smiles and emotional cheers.

One observer who has traveled with presidents for many years said that he had seen nothing like this since John F. Kennedy went to Berlin in 1963.

As Nixon wound his way down broad boulevards shaded by blossoming flame trees, crowds stood five and six deep for miles chanting, cheering, clapping, dancing and thrusting out their fingers in the "V" for peace sign.

Often the Egyptians pushed into the streets, risking injury by the fast-moving vehicles simply to try to touch the cars and buses in the motorcade.

In another city —Saigon, say, or even Cairo just a few months ago —it would have been necessary to clear the rooftops and the balconies, line the streets with armed men and barricades and keep out all but a few trusted supporters of the government.

But there were no barricades, no empty rooftops and balconies, no soldiers visible except the honor guard at the airport and even police protection seemed insufficient to prevent someone from taking a shot at Nixon.

Spaced 30 or 40 feet apart, police wore neither guns nor night sticks and at times were overwhelmed by the surging crowds.

Security may not be so relaxed in the other Arab capitals Nixon will visit. Considerable worry has been expressed privately by members of the presidential party about Damascus where there are many more Palestinians than here.

Liquor Links Not Accepted

DALLAS (UPI) — An agency of the Southern Baptist Convention has sold $325,000 worth of Pepsico common stock because the bottlers of Pepsi-Cola also own a New York winery.

A spokesman for the Dallas-based SBC Annuity Board said the action wasn't anything new.

"Our investment manager bought about $100,000 worth of Holiday Inn stock (two years ago) and we had to sell it because it conflicted with our policy against alcoholic beverages," he said. "They sell alcoholic drinks in their motels."

TODAY'S WORLD

Doctors Are Under Attack

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India annually turns out a large number of doctors who do not know even the rudiments of their profession, a government report says.

In its anxiety to produce more doctors the country has "sacrified quality for quantity," the report said.

The document was prepared by the government's employment commission after interviewing 2,239 candidates in Andhra Pradesh state.

Nearly 14,000 doctors graduate each year from the country's 104 medical colleges.

ships," the sound truck told the crowds.

And everywhere were the chants of "Nix-on...Nix-on" that sometimes even drowned out the nose of the train.

"I've never seen people so excited and emotional," said a White House official aboard the train. "This is for a President who has run into hostile placards in the U.S.," referring to Nixon's impeachment troubles over Watergate back home.

About 30,000 policemen were turned out for security purposes along the train route, carrying automatic weapons. Helicopters followed Nixon's motorcade through the streets of Alexandria.

Security measures are expected to increase as Nixon continues his journey through the Mideast, especially in view of an Arab guerrilla attack today at the Israeli settlement of Shamir.

Nixon and his wife will spend the night at Ras El Tin Palace, from where King Farouk went into exile in 1952, before returning to Cairo tomorrow for a visit to the pyramids. He will depart tomorrow for Saudi Arabia and then will go on to Syria, Israel and Jordan.

"Long live Nixon!" shouted the crowd as Nixon left the Cairo station. He responded with smiles, waves and the V sign Nixon is so known for — arms high over his head, two fingers spread apart.

"I made arrangements for this special trip to pass by this place where I could see them," said Abdul Hak Ahmed, 36, who led a string of four camels to a spot where the train passed. "I want to go to Mecca most of all but I want to be here, too."

A line of horses blanketed with American and Egyptian flags was strung out along one section of track.

"It's unbelievable," Ziegler said. "My God, it's unbelievable."

Knowland Reported Insolvent At Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times said today William F. Knowland, Oakland Tribune publisher and former U.S. senator, was insolvent when he committed suicide, owing banks more than $900,000.

Most of the loans have since been repaid, the newspaper said documents filed in Alameda County Superior Court showed.

Knowland, a prominent Republican who ran unsuccessfully for California governor, shot himself to death at his Northern California vacation home Feb. 23.

Among the court documents, filed in probate proceedings, was an evaluation by the accounting firm of O'Keefe and Lalanne estimating that Knowland's estate on March 15 had assets of $641,428.28 and liabilities of $1,312,333.

Paul Manolis, Knowland's close friend and executor of the estate, said the estate was insolvent.

"The creditors' claims filed to date show, to some extent, the manner in which the said Ann Dickson Knowland contributed to the insolvency of the said William F. Knowland," Manolis said in a statement filed with the court May 26.

Manolis told the Times Knowland's financial condition had nothing to do with the Tribune. He said Knowland owned only "around 10 per cent" of the newspaper, which is run by a family-controlled corporation.

The attorney for Ann Dickson Knowland, Knowland's second wife, said he didn't believe the estate was insolvent, saying he thought it was an attempt to deprive his client of what she considers a fair living allowance.

Mrs. Knowland was a 38-year-old Las Vegas divorcee, former actress and model when she married Knowland in May 1972 after he was divorced from his wife of 45 years, Helen.

Knowland filed for a dissolution of marriage to the second Mrs. Knowland in February 1973, but Lewis W. Boies, her attorney, said yesterday they had reconciled and were "happily married."

In a statement to the court, Mrs. Knowland said, "At no time during my conversations with my husband and prior to his death did he indicate any financial distress or insolvency of any kind of nature . . ."

Manolis, in his statement filed with the court, replied, "The fact is that the said William F. Knowland has told me on many occasions that he has told his wife, Ann Dickson Knowland, that he was not an Onassis or Hughes and could not afford that which she was spending."

Bills showed that on Feb. 15 Mrs. Knowland spent $516 for a dress, $365 for a jersey outfit, $125 for another dress, $650 for a "three-piece original," $440 for a leather outfit, $160 for a necklace, $45 for a ring and $36 for a sweater.

'Zebra' Informant Safety Assured

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The informant, whose testimony led to four arrests in San Francisco's "Zebra" street slayings, was booked for parole violation and will be confined to a correctional facility for his safety.

Anthony C. Harris, 28, was booked in Los Angeles where he was recaptured eight days after he slipped away from the protective custody of two U.S. deputy marshals at the Fort Barry military reservation.

San Rafael School Post Is Filled

Jon J. Selzak of San Ramon in Contra Costa County has been named director of instructional services for the San Rafael City Schools.

Slezak, 35, was chosen from over 200 applicants for the $25,000-a-year position, according to a district spokesman.

As director he will have charge of changing and improving the entire district curriculum for grades kindergarten through 12.

The school district board screened applicants for the job and officially will ratify Slezak's appointment at an upcoming meeting.

Government Finds Food Costs Higher

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like any other food shopper, the Agriculture Department is finding it costs a lot more to buy dry beans this year.

The department yesterday wound up its purchases of beans for government donation programs in the fiscal year ending June 30. Officials bought 33.6 million pounds at average of about 28 cents a pound — more than twice the amount it paid a year ago.

Denial To Chiang Death Watch

TAIPEI (UPI) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has grown more frail and his days of active leadership appear over, well-placed sources here report.

"He could live for many more years, of course," one said. "But his working days are over. There can be no doubt about that."

Chiang, 86, remains president of the Republic of China, but the duties are performed now by his eldest son, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, 64.

Chiang rose to the leadership after the 1925 death of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the republic. His unrealized goal was to return and take the mainland back from Mao Tse-tung and the Communists who wrested it from him 25 years ago.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK
Leadership over

Spokesman Frederick Chien labeled as a "flagrant lie" a Taipei source's report that there was "virtually a death watch" at the generalissimo's residence in the Scholar's Forest on the slopes of Yanminshan (Grass Mountain).

The sources in the Taiwan capital here report that Chiang is now even more frail than normal and often slips into periods of senility. They said he is unable to perform any official functions. He has not appeared in public since attending a youth rally in 1972.

Chiang last saw foreign visitors in March when Walter P. McConaughy, the departing American ambassador, and several other American guests were given an audience.

The visitors dined with Madame Chiang and saw the president only for a brief period. Chiang received each separately for about five or 10 minutes.

None of the guests spoke Chinese and sources said the interpreter who was present could easily have "carried" Chiang in the conversations. The guests later said Chiang seemed lucid during the talks and discussed matters of substance related to the specific interests of each guests, some of whom were American military officers.

Chiang began withdrawing from the political scene following an automobile accident in 1969. An army truck hit the automobile in which the president and his wife were riding and Chiang spent three and one-half months in a hospital with injuries.

In July 1972, Chiang contracted pneumonia, complicated by a heart condition. He was in critical condition for a month and spent much of that time under an oxygen tent.

That was two months after he had been sworn in for his fifth six-year term as president of the Republic of China.

Calley's Attorneys See No Precedent In My Lai Case

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Killing civilians in a combat zone cannot be compared with mass murder in the United States, attorneys for former Army Lt. William L. Calley argued yesterday.

J. Houston Gordon, Calley's chief counsel, told a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel it was dealing with an unprecedented case in considering whether bail should be continued for the soldier convicted of killing 22 South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968.

"This is probably the most unique case in military judicial history," said Gordon. "The tests for commission of murder in warfare and a combat zone in what the government has always contended was a combat assault would certainly be different from murder in the streets of New Orleans."

The Justice Department contended at yesterday's hearings a U.S. District Court in Georgia overstepped its powers in freeing Calley, 36, from house arrest at Fort Benning.

"It's our position that the order of the court is an unauthorized intrusion into the military discretionary determination," said a Justice Department attorney who wants Calley sent to military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Calley had been scheduled for transfer to Fort Leavenworth last February, but the district court authorized bail and released him one day before the move was to occur.

Calley has spent one night in prison since his conviction. The remainder of his nearly three years in custody has been served in his officer's quarters at Fort Benning.

Throughout the 70-minute hearing, Calley sat with his chin cradled in his left palm. He wore a tan knit suit with blue shirt and a striped blue tie.

Calley's attorneys predicted the case would be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, no matter what decision was issued by the 5th Circuit.

Knowland Reported Insolvent At Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times said today William F. Knowland, Oakland Tribune publisher and former U.S. senator, was insolvent when he committed suicide, owing banks more than $900,000.

Most of the loans have since been repaid, the newspaper said documents filed in Alameda County Superior Court showed.

Knowland, a prominent Republican who ran unsuccessfully for California governor, shot himself to death at his Northern California vacation home Feb. 23.

Among the court documents, filed in probate proceedings, was an evaluation by the accounting firm of O'Keefe and Lalanne estimating that Knowland's estate on March 15 had assets of $641,428.28 and liabilities of $1,312,333.

Paul Manolis, Knowland's close friend and executor of the estate, said the estate was insolvent.

"The creditors' claims filed to date show, to some extent, the manner in which the said Ann Dickson Knowland contributed to the insolvency of the said William F. Knowland," Manolis said in a statement filed with the court May 26.

Manolis told the Times Knowland's financial condition had nothing to do with the Tribune. He said Knowland owned only "around 10 per cent" of the newspaper, which is run by a family-controlled corporation.

The attorney for Ann Dickson Knowland, Knowland's second wife, said he didn't believe the estate was insolvent, saying he thought it was an attempt to deprive his client of what she considers a fair living allowance.

Mrs. Knowland was a 38-year-old Las Vegas divorcee, former actress and model when she married Knowland in May 1972 after he was divorced from his wife of 45 years, Helen.

Knowland filed for a dissolution of marriage to the second Mrs. Knowland in February 1973, but Lewis W. Boies, her attorney, said yesterday they had reconciled and were "happily married."

In a statement to the court, Mrs. Knowland said, "At no time during my conversations with my husband and prior to his death did he indicate any financial distress or insolvency of any kind of nature . . ."

Manolis, in his statement filed with the court, replied, "The fact is that the said William F. Knowland has told me on many occasions that he has told his wife, Ann Dickson Knowland, that he was not an Onassis or Hughes and could not afford that which she was spending."

Bills showed that on Feb. 15 Mrs. Knowland spent $516 for a dress, $365 for a jersey outfit, $425 for another dress, $650 for a "three-piece original," $440 for a leather outfit, $160 for a necklace, $45 for a ring and $36 for a sweater.

'Zebra' Informant Safety Assured

Anthony C. Harris, 28, was booked in Los Angeles where he was recaptured eight days after he slipped away from the protective custody of two U.S. deputy marshals at the Fort Barry military reservation.

Denial To Chiang Death Watch

TAIPEI (UPI) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has grown more frail and his days of active leadership appear over, well-placed sources here report.

"He could live for many more years, of course," one said. "But his working days are over. There can be no doubt about that."

Chiang, 86, remains president of the Republic of China, but the duties are performed now by his eldest son, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, 64.

Chiang rose to the leadership after the 1925 death of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the republic. His unrealized goal was to return and take the mainland back from Mao Tse-tung and the Communists who wrested it from him 25 years ago.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK
Leadership over

Spokesman Frederick Chien labeled as a "flagrant lie" a Taipei source's report that there was "virtually a death watch" at the generalissimo's residence in the Scholar's Forest on the slopes of Yanminshan (Grass Mountain).

The sources in the Taiwan capital here report that Chiang is now even more frail than normal and often slips into periods of senility. They said he is unable to perform any official functions. He has not appeared in public since attending a youth rally in 1972.

Chiang last saw foreign visitors in March when Walter P. McConaughy, the departing American ambassador, and several other American guests were given an audience.

The visitors dined with Madame Chiang and saw the president only for a brief period. Chiang received each separately for about five or 10 minutes.

None of the guests spoke Chinese and sources said the interpreter who was present could easily have "carried" Chiang in the conversations. The guests later said Chiang seemed lucid during the talks and discussed matters of substance related to the specific interests of each guests, some of whom were American military officers.

Chiang began withdrawing from the political scene following an automobile accident in 1969. An army truck hit the automobile in which the president and his wife were riding and Chiang spent three and one-half months in a hospital with injuries.

In July 1972, Chiang contracted pneumonia, complicated by a heart condition. He was in critical condition for a month and spent much of that time under an oxygen tent.

That was two months after he had been sworn in for his fifth six-year term as president of the Republic of China.

Calley's Attorneys See No Precedent In My Lai Case

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Killing civilians in a combat zone cannot be compared with mass murder in the United States, attorneys for former Army Lt. William L. Calley argued yesterday.

J. Houston Gordon, Calley's chief counsel, told a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel it was dealing with an unprecedented case in considering whether bail should be continued for the soldier convicted of killing 22 South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968.

"This is probably the most unique case in military judicial history," said Gordon. "The tests for commission of murder in warfare and a combat zone in what the government has always contended was a combat assault would certainly be different from murder in the streets of New Orleans."

The Justice Department contended at yesterday's hearings a U.S. District Court in Georgia overstepped its powers in freeing Calley, 36, from house arrest at Fort Benning.

"It's our position that the order of the court is an unauthorized intrusion into the military discretionary determination," said a Justice Department attorney who wants Calley sent to military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Calley had been scheduled for transfer to Fort Leavenworth last February, but the district court authorized bail and released him one day before the move was to occur.

Calley has spent one night in prison since his conviction. The remainder of his nearly three years in custody has been served in his officer's quarters at Fort Benning.

Throughout the 70-minute hearing, Calley sat with his chin cradled in his left palm. He wore a tan knit suit with blue shirt and a striped blue tie.

Calley's attorneys predicted the case would be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, no matter what decision was issued by the 5th Circuit.

RARE AMPHIBIAN — Joey Koza was a little reluctant but finally agreed to temporarily give up his rare albino frog, Alpine, so researchers at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor could attempt to mate the amphibian with another in an effort to produce "see-through" frogs for scientific research. Wiretap Question A Puzzler

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said a year ago that he "authorized" selected wiretapping of government officials and newsmen in 1969-71 and that Henry A. Kissinger, then his special assistant for national security, helped determine the targets.

But Nixon's language May 22, 1973, in describing the operation, and that of White House spokesmen since then, have left unclear who it was that actually initiated and ordered the secret surveillance and just what was the depth of Kissinger's involvement.

And that is part of the reason for the current controversy and confusion, as evidenced by remarks presidential counselor Dean Burch made yesterday at a news conference.

Asked if Nixon personally ordered the wiretaps, Burch seemed surprised. "The President said that on May 22, that he instigated the wiretaps," he replied. "There's nothing new about that ... I don't think there's any serious dispute about that or that it was done for national security reasons."

But when a reporter pointed out that Nixon had said he "authorized" the wiretaps and not that he had ordered them, Burch responded: "Well, we are in semantic quibble here about the word authorized, initiated or whatever."

Asked if the words should be taken to have the same meaning, Burch acknowledged that he didn't know how to interpret the language "under these circumstances."

Nixon's May 22, 1973, comments on the wiretapping were given little attention at the time because they were included in a long-awaited statement by the President detailing his handling of the effort to get at the bottom of the Watergate break-in and subsequent cover-up.

Panel Says IRS Tape Critical

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Judiciary Committee lawyers say a tape now in the hands of Judge John J. Sirica is critical to their inquiry into charges President Nixon used the nternal Revenue Service to retaliate against his enemies.

The committee hoped to complete the closed-door presentation of evidence on the IRS allegations today.

But it will be without the last 15 minutes of a Sept. 15, 1972 tape in which Nixon is said to have discussed the matter.

Special Counsel John Doar said he hoped the committee could get the tape before completing the impeachment probe.

"There is evidence that the content of that tape is relevant to our investigation," Doar said. "At the appropriate time the committee will meet to decide what steps it will take in attempting to secure that tape."

Sirica, describing the tape as "highly relevant," ordered it sent to a grand jury, but said he was powerless to give it to the judiciary committee. James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, said he would appeal Sirica's order.

The committee has the first part of the tape, including a section where Nixon said to John W. Dean III, according to the White House transcripts:

"I want the most comprehensive notes on all those who tried to do us in. They didn't have to do it. ...They are asking for it and they are going to get it. We have not used the power in the first four years as you know. We have never used it ... but things have changed now."

In that part of the conversation Nixon mentioned using the FBI and the Justice Department against White House enemies, but there have been public allegations that use of the IRS was discussed in the latter portion the committee does not have.

Two moderate Democratic congressmen said there was evidence presented Wednesday to show that the White House used the IRS to harass its enemies. But they added, that nothing in the evidence yet links Nixon with the actions of his aides.

"That's why the tape is so important. We want to know if the orders came from the President," one of the Democrats said.

After the committee finishes the IRS probe, it will turn to the question of Nixon's impoundment of up to $18 billion worth of congressionally approved expenditures.

The staff of the committee yesterday issued a legal brief finding no grounds for impeachment on the impoundment question.

During yesterday's session, chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., told committee members "in pretty strong language" he wanted leaks on the impeachment investigation to stop immediately, several congressmen said.

Rodino later told reporters that the leaks could result in discrediting the committee's impeachment probe.

"While I deplore the fact there has been a leak, I believe the committee has conducted itself responsibly," Rodino told reporters.

Russian Roulette Probe Under Way

CANNES, France (UPI) — Police today questioned Louis Porthault on charges he accidentally shot and killed Herbert W. Coleman, 46, the tenor of the Delta Rhythm Boys, who tried to stop him from playing Russian roulette.

Police said Porthault was arrested on involuntary homicide charges. The Frenchman, brandishing a revolver and pretending to play the Russian roulette outside the Palm Beach bar, accidentally pressed the trigger and killed Coleman who was trying to tell him to put the pistol away, police said.

Ehrlichman Will Get Documents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House lawyers have agreed to give John D. Ehrlichman some documents he wants for his defense, avoiding —at least for the time being — the possibility of a contempt of court citation against President Nixon.

The move also may mean Ehrlichman, Nixon's former chief domestic adviser, will go on trial in the Ellsberg case as scheduled next week instead of later.

Ehrlichman is the chief defendant remaining in the Ellsberg case, set for trial Monday. He is accused of having over-all responsibility for the 1971 burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Romance Of Albino Frogs Is Promoted

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — University of Michigan researchers are encouraging a rare romance —between two albino frogs.

At their first meeting yesterday, the two frogs, named Alpine and Albie, focused their bulging red eyes on each other briefly, then turned away.

There are a couple of problems that not even Ann Landers could solve.

For another, researchers believe the two frogs are one year too young to breed.

But Dr. Christina Richards, a coordinator at the university's Amphibian facility, remains hopeful.

"If they produce more Albino frogs," she said, "it would give us quite a coup."

It certainly would. Experts say the chances of hatching an Albino frog is about as rare as humans producing quintuplets.

The value of Albino frogs to science is clear —their lack of skin coloring enables science to study their bodily functions.

"See-through frogs," some researchers call them.

Both the frogs at the University of Michigan were found, against long, long odds, in the same place.

To Dr. Richard's suprprise, she said, a third Albino frog also was found in Warren, by a 4-year-old boy.

"I think that two toads, each carrying a gene for albinism, mated and a clutch (litter) of eggs was hatched," she said.

Mobile Chairman Still Optimistic

NEW YORK (AP) — International oil companies will still have a role to play in Saudi Arabia despite the government's takeover of 60 per cent of the Arabian-American oil company, the chairman of Mobile Oil says.

"Mobile hopes to continue contributing to the economic development of Saudi Arabia both within Aramco and outside that company," Rawleigh Warner Jr. said following Mondays' announcement that the Saudi ownership share will jump from 25 per cent to 60.

Aramco said the switch in ownership control will be retroactive to Jan. 1 this year. The announcement made no mention of the amount of compensation to be paid to the four American oil companies who had previously owned 75 per cent of the company, the world's largest producer of oil The four are Mobil, Standard of California, Texaco and Exxon.

Warner would not go beyond the Aramco announcement, saying that details of the interim agreement would be discussed with Saudi Arabia in July.

In an interview just before the takeover announcement, Warner had said that changes in the relationship between the American owners and Saudi Arabia would be "pretty fundamental." He said that in the future international oil companies such as Mobil will have less control over production of foreign oil and increasingly become buyers and marketers of it.

"Yes, we will be a buyer of oil," he said. "I recognize that in the future we are not going to make as much profit per barrel of oil as we've made in the past. We're going to have to make more money out of the marketing and refining and transportation end of our business."

He said that only the international oil companies have the expertise necessary to find, produce and market oil. Because of this, these companies will continue to be active in producing countries, Warner said.

Young Poet Laureate Writes About Life He's Never Known

CHICAGO (UPI) — It was movies and television, not life experience, that inspired 13-year-old Donald Franklin to write his poem about life in the ghetto. The verses made him one of five seventh and eighth grade poet laureates in Illinois.

State Poet Laureate Gwendolyn Brooks, who selected the winners, said most of the poems were about love and nature. A number of black children, like Donald, however, wrote their poems with a harsher edge, she said.

Donald's poem, "In the Ghetto," goes like this:

Describe the ghetto as best you can,
The dirty streets, the drunken man,
The lifeless puppy found on the curb,
The crying baby that's never heard.
Broken windows, poverty-stricken homes.
Platform shoes, natural combs.
In the ghetto some encounter drugs,
And some are beaten by merciless thugs.
So terrible these things seem to be,
But still the ghetto is home to me.

Donald said some friends, the movies and television gave him the idea for the poem. His mother, Mrs. Donald Franklin, described her son as a bookworm and a loner who usually writes about the weather, nature and spring.

"I wanted to do something different for this contest," he said. "It took me about two days to write this one. See, when I write a poem, it takes time. I write a couple of lines and sit back and think a little then write a couple more lines."

"I knew I wanted to top it off with something from the heart," he said. "After I wrote all those bad things about the ghetto, I thought I would put in something good."

Soviet Trust Is Questioned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cardinal Josef Mindzenty, who spent 15 years in asylum in the U.S. embassy in Budapest, said yesterday Americans should not trust the Russians.

The 82-year-old prelate, making a tour of the United States to see Hungarian Catholics, said the United States should not trust the detente with the Soviet Union, which he said is ruled by "a system which is both godless and without humanity."

Asked about the Watergate scandal, he said he would not comment on American politics, but said "as far as the American people are concerned, they are, they always have been and always will continue to be good people."

New Recreation Bond Vote Eyed

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission will decide whether to place another bond issue for recreation on the November 5 ballot when it meets July 10.

On March 5, Petaluma voters rejected a proposed $1.9 million parks and recreation bond measure to finance improvement and expansion of recreational facilities around the city.

Commissioners last night indicated they believe the need for more facilities is crucial and decided to discuss the matter further next month.

A recreation department spokesman said a decision must be made by mid-July if the measure is to be on the November ballot.

The commission also elected John Dado as its chairman for the next year, and Richard Muzio as vice chairman.

Italian Lover Image Takes Severe Beating

Italian men, they said, are poorly suited for the battle of the sexes.

"They are like puppies, not men," said an Austrian woman in the book, "Italsex," by Italian writer Costanzo Costantini.

"It's not true they are good lovers," a Chilean asserted.

"They enjoy only the conquest and by the time they come to the physical act they are so tired that they can't do anything more."

The author said the interviews with 20 foreign women, all residents of Italy and all admitting to sex with Italian men, were intended to compare their views with accusations by Italian women that their Latin partners were inept in bed.

In a previous survey, over a half of 1,000 married Italian women interviewed assailed what their husbands did or did not do when the lights were out.

A quarter of them said they had been unfaithful to their husbands. Half the faithful ones said they had remained so only because they never had the chance to do otherwise.

A Spaniard interviewed by Constantini had the only kind words: "The Italian man is capable of making his women feel she is the sexiest in the world — even if he is thinking of his appointment with the next."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has turned down California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke's request that his trial on perjury charges, now set for July 15, be moved to the West Coast. His lawyers indicated they would not carry the appeal to the Supreme Court.

TIME CAPSULE — A 55-gallon oil drum, carrying messages and memorabilia not to be unearthed for 10 years hangs suspended over its intended berth. Students of the Mill Valley Middle School will leave the capsule untouched until the year 1984 — when George Orwell's ominous prophecies are due to reach maturity.

Time Capsule Will Be Opened In 1984

A time capsule containing memories of the present and predictions for the future was buried on the lawn of the Mill Valley Middle School yesterday.

Three eighth grade social studies classes, including about 100 students, were involved in the project, according to teacher Tony Deprado.

The capsule was a 55-gallon oil drum which was wrapped in plastic and sunk into a six-foot hole.

Deprado said it is to be dug up in 10 years.

Among items packed away for posterity were predictions about political and economic life in 1984, catalogs of today's prices, videotapes of students in their classes, 1974 photos of Marin and local buildings, tape recordings by students, newspapers and magazines.

Students also wrote letters to themselves which will be mailed to them when the capsule is opened. The letters discuss their current likes, dislikes and feelings.

A major thing Deprado said he learned from the capsule is that students have little idea of the pace of change. ("They think that things are changing much faster than they are," he said. "For example, I asked them to predict the price of steak, and they said there might not be any cows in 10 years.")

Tamalpais High School also buried a 50-year capsule this week, but Deprado said his class had the idea for doing one long before the high school did.

Plastic Linked To Cancer Cases

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Connecticut's Health Department section says it may have found a link between occupational exposure to a plastic material used in several manufacturing processes and cancer of the liver.

The department said yesterday that of six pathological samples sent to a cancer research institute in Bethesda, Md., two of them proved to have had exposure to the material, polyvinyl chloride.

The department's public health education section said several scientists around the country have been conducting studies to determine whether there is a link between cancer of the liver and the plastic product.

Court Says Alioto Fee Sharing Was Not Improper

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — The Washington State Supreme Court, in a 6-3 decision, said today there was nothing illegal in an $800,000 fee sharing arrangement involving former Washington Atty. Gen. John J. O'Connell and San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto.

The decision affirmed a 1972 Clark County Superior Court jury verdict in a lengthy case. The trial was interrupted at one point by the death of a judge.

The majority ruling, written by Justice Hugh J. Rosellini, said there was no error committed at the trial level which could lead to reversal.

"The record shows that the appellants were given a very long day in court," Rosellini said. "It is not suggested that either the judges who presided over this case or the jury which decided the facts were swayed by passion or prejudice.

"The verdict is supported by substantial evidence and will not be disturbed."

The case was brought by current Washington Atty. Gen. Slade Gorton, who was seeking a refund of more than $2 million in legal fees paid Alioto before he became mayor for work in a $16 million electrical antitrust settlement.

Gorton asked for the refund on grounds that Alioto secretly shared more than $800,000 of his fees with O'Connell and George K. Faler, an O'Connell aide, after O'Connell lifted a $1 million fee limit for Alioto's work.

Tomato Juice To Gain Status In Vitamin Count

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tomato juice is about to win the same breakfast table status as that old standby orange juice, at least as far as vitamin C is concerned.

New regulations to be published by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) will allow the manufacturers of tomato juice to fortify it with vitamin C up to the level at which that nutrient is found naturally in orange juice.

That level of vitamin C, 10 milligrams an ounce, may also be added to all other beverages that imitate orange juice or are otherwise marketed for breakfast consumption.

The change in tomato juice, effective in 60 days, was requested by the Del Monte Corp., of San Francisco, a major food producer.

A citrus grower's association didn't like the idea, telling the FDA the tomato juice people only wanted it to grab a bigger share of the juice market.

The citrus lobby also contended that vitamin C added to food in the form of ascorbic acid isn't quite as good, or at least is different from, naturally occurring vitamin C such as that found in oranges.

FDA Commissioner Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt rejected those arguments, however, saying there was no scientific evidence to show there are any differences between the two forms of vitamin C.

He added that fortification is important because "tomato juice is used primarily as a breakfast beverage" and such beverages constitute the major source of vitamin C for Americans.

The tomato juice regulation was part of a package of 17 proposed or final food rules and guidelines which Schmidt said are designed to "prevent an irrational nutritional horsepower race."

Approves Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee Thursday approved a $24.3 billion increase in the national debt ceiling.

Two Would Stop All Aid To India

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An effort to strip India of all U.S. military and economic assistance because of its recent nuclear testing has been undertaken by two congressional Republicans.

Sen. Marlow Cook, Ky., and Rep. Stanford E. Parris, Va., introduced a measure yesterday urging that all American aid be withheld until India signs the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Judge Sets Plea Date For Four In Stolen Goods Case

A San Anselmo father and three of his four sons, accused of being part of a massive stolen goods ring, will enter pleas to their grand jury indictment on June 26, Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best ordered today.

He set trial for another son and a Mill Valley woman indicted in the same case for the week of July 29. Kathleen Lee Hart, 19, and Steven Joseph O'Brien, 22, had previously pleaded innocent.

When Joseph Walter O'Brien, 55, and sons Daniel Joe O'Brien, 27; Gregory Walter O'Brien, 25, and Timothy Mark O'Brien, 23, appeared in court today they still lacked defense attorneys. Judge Best appointed members of the county bar association and granted a delay in plea entry so the attorneys could confer with their clients.

The father, his four sons and the woman all are free on various amounts of bail or their own recognizance.

The Marin County Grand Jury voted a 16-count indictment against the six on June 5.

Using search warrants, police later seized a large quantity of what they said were stolen goods, from the O'Brien home on the fringes of Sleepy Hollow.

All six are charged with concealing stolen goods.

SLAPSTICK SIDESHOW

Two 7-month-old polar bear cubs at the Woodland Park Zoo in Seattle put on an impromptu wrestling and boxing match yesterday to the delight of many zoo patrons who caught the act. The cubs, both male, have yet to be named. (UPI Telephoto)

Forest Ban On Autos Coming In Five Years

VISALIA (AP) — Cars and concession facilities will be barred eventually from a forest of giant Sequoias, among the world's largest trees, officials at Sequoia-Kings National Park announced.

Automobiles may be prevented from traveling General's Highway to the giant forest area within five years, Supt. Henry Schmidt told newsmen during a tour yesterday.

Visitors will be taken on a 7½-mile loop of the big trees by mini-buses of the type pioneered by Yosemite National Park farther north in the Sierra Nevada range, he added.

All overnight sleeping quarters will be moved within 10 to 15 years to the Lodgepole area between the giant forest and Grant Grove, Schmidt said.

The changes are needed to protect the giant Sequoias as visitor usage has grown to 1½-2 million people annually, he added. The Lodgepole site was chosen for concessions because the environmental impact there is expected to be slight, Schmidt said.

Library Service Comes To Lake County At Last

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Every California county now provides its residents with county-wide public library service, State Librarian Ethel Crockett said today.

The completion of the library system for the state came after an affirmative vote in Lake County last week for a proposition authorizing a county library and an increase in the tax rate to support it, she said in a news release.

The final vote in the county was 65.6 per cent in favor of the measure, she added.

The approval means the county can build a central public library and can take over a bookmobile and other services provided in the county by a federally funded program, said Maurie Streitmatter, a spokesman for the state library. The county property tax rate can now be raised a maximum of 12 cents per $100 of assessed value to finance the entire program.

TV Theft Suspect Is Arrested

A Corte Madera man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of stealing a color television set from a Sausalito home.

Robert Bruce Moffett, 24, of 239 Chapman Drive, was booked into county jail for investigation of burglary. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

He was arrested at 9:05 p.m. yesterday after a witness reported seeing his white pickup truck in the 200 block of Harrison Avenue, where the burglary occurred Tuesday. Police declined to name the burglary victim.

Investigators said Moffett supplied information that led to the recovery of the TV, valued at $275, which was returned to its owner.

Water Conservation Plan Revised

A policy that would require water conservation devices and landscaping plans in all new developments was reviewed yesterday by directors of the Marin Municipal Water District.

The conservation proposal, being developed by district staff, would insure that all new buildings include special toilets and shower heads which use less water, pressure reducing valves and insulated hot water pipes, among other devices.

Developers also would be required to present for district approval detailed landscaping plans that include, when possible, drought resistant plants and turf and ground cover, plus efficient irrigation systems.

Much of the proposal is based on water conservation tests and experiments by the University of California at Riverside and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Use of the toilets, pressure reducing valves and reduced flow shower heads could lower water consumption in the average home by 42 per cent, according to staff estimates.

Directors already have included many of the water saving measures as a condition of approval for water connections for new buildings.

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District also:

EQUIPMENT — Approved buying fire hydrant fixtures from Groeniger Co. for $13,515.

REAPPORTIONMENT — Discussed reapportionment of divisions within water district boundaries on the basis of population rather than the number of registered voters, as is the present practice. No attempt at reapportionment will be made until after the November elections, directors agreed.

SESSIONS — Set 7:30 p.m. July 30 for a workshop on water resources. Rate structures will be discussed at a special session July 11.

FEE — Approved buying about 10 acres on the San Quentin Peninsula in East San Rafael for $190,000. The property will be used for a district pipe storage yard.

LEASE — Leased for one year at $275 a month an unused lot at Second Street and Grand Avenue in San Rafael to the City of San Rafael for a car pooling area and parking lot.

SURPLUS USERS — Extended from July 1 to Dec. 1 the deadline for cutting off water service to surplus users outside district boundaries.

CONTRACT — Approved a contract with Earl Gilson of San Anselmo for $4,500 to install about 650 feet of pipe on Springside Way in Tamalpais Valley.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to discuss wage negotiations with district employees.

Laser Beams May Enrich Uranium, Scientist Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Laser light beams may be used to prepare uranium for use in power reactors, a University of California scientist reported today.

Sam A. Tuccio, research physicist at the Atomic Energy Commission's Livermore Laboratory, operated by the university, made the report at a conference on electronics here.

He said that in an experiment a small amount of uranium-235 was enriched in concentration to more than 60 per cent with a carefully tuned laser beam.

"The experiment was done on a microscopic scale, but it represents a step toward determining whether laser techniques may eventually prove attractive on a scale large enough for the enrichment of reactor fuel," according to a university release on Tuccio's work.

He said the laser concept "is only one of the many that appear possible theoretically" for enriching nuclear fuel.

Army Accused Of Sex Bias By 17-Year-Old Burlingame Girl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 17-year-old Burlingame high school junior today filed suit against the United States Army for discriminating against women in its enlistment procedures.

Grace Chandler, filing a class action on behalf of women, alleged that the Army would not permit her to enlist because she had not graduated from high school and because she was under 18 years of age even though she had her parents' consent.

Her brother recently enlisted in the Army at age 17 without a high school diploma, she said.

The federal court suit, filed by the Youth Law Center of San Francisco, also challenged other enlistment criteria and procedures, such as minimum test scores and juvenile court records, which allegedly discriminated between men and women.

The petition asked for a three-judge court to decide the issue.

Deadline Set On Food Booths

Organizations which want to operate food booths at the Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival must apply by July 1, according to Tora Garaventa, festival committee president.

July 15 is the deadline for applications from artists who wish to exhibit at the festival and July 17 is the last day for submitting entries in the festival's poster contest.

Posters must include the festival dates, Sept. 28 and 29; the location, Old Mill Park, and the festival's name.

Mrs. Garventa, of 909 Greenhill Road, Tamalpais Valley, can provide further information.

Capital Improvements Keyed To Novato Streets

Novato's proposed $1,421,090 capital improvements budget for 1974-75 focuses on the city's deteriorating streets — considered a major problem.

The spending plan reviewed by the Novato City Council last night, allocates $834,300 for public works, (mainly streets) $291,790 for park development and $360,000 for a proposed civic center.

Rodney B. Brown, assistant to the city manager, said the needed street work could have been accomplished sooner and at less cost if the three recently defeated street bond measures had passed.

"Without question the city's street problem is the major one facing city government and they will continue to deteriorate until a street bond issue is passed or new revenues become available," he said.

Major projects listed in the street program are:

1. Reconstruction of Simmons Lane from Novato Creek to San Marin Drive, including widening and drainage improvements — $160,000.

2. Rowland Boulevard improvements, traffic signals and drainage at South Novato Boulevard and at Redwood Highway, in connection with freeway construction — $124,000.

3. Improvement of drainage along Hill Avenue — $78,000.

4. Reconstruction of Railroad Avenue and resurfacing of Olive Avenue between Redwood Boulevard and Railroad Avenue — $70,000.

5. Right-of-way acquisition and widening along Novato Boulevard between Grant and Wilson avenues — $66,000.

6. Virginia Avenue drainage and shoulder improvements — $42,000.

7. Reichert Avenue connection from Sweetser to Vallejo avenues — $60,000.

Most of the park improvement budget will go "to complete or substantially complete" park areas now being developed, according to Brown.

The park development projects included in the spending plan are: Miwok Park, $101,500; Lynwood School Park, $8,000; Pioneer Park, $15,000; Marin Highlands, $6,500; Olive School Park, $29,000, and tot lots, $20,000.

The budget also includes $40,000 toward purchase of O'Hair Park and $10,000 for its development and $21,790 toward purchase of the Heifetz property, known as Lynwood Park.

The civic center budget allocates $300,000 for land for a new civic center and $60,000 for remodeling of the Novato Community House.

The council will continue its budget review at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Kissinger Wins Senate Backing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has threatened to quit unless he is cleared of allegations that he ordered wiretaps, has won strong, initial backing in the Senate.

More than 40 senators, including Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, have signed a resolution calling Kissinger's "integrity and veracity" above reproach.

Kissinger, touring in the Middle East with President Nixon, has remained silent since his emotion-charged news conference in Salzburg, Austria, Tuesday, when he threatened to resign unless he was cleared by "some responsible forum."

But angry Republicans sharply attacked the House Judiciary Committee, as the source of allegations that Kissinger ordered wiretaps on 17 newsmen and government officials from 1969 through 1971.

Kissinger denied under oath Sept. 7 that he initiated the wiretaps. He said he only provided the names of persons who had access to classified information that was leaked to newspapers.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Sens. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., Edward Gurney, R-Fla., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., presidential counselor Dean Burch and Vice President Gerald R. Ford all denounced the leaks of FBI documents on the wiretap controversy to several newspapers and the use of them by the media.

Goldwater accused the Washington Post of "an act of treason" for quoting secret FBI memos as contradicting Kissinger's account. He added that national security was the important issue not "nitpicking" over whether Kissinger might have told a "falsehood" when testifying about his role in the wiretappings at his confirmation hearing.

Burch blamed "back door, back biting" news leaks from the Judiciary Committee or its staff as the source of information against Kissinger. Ford accused "pro-impeachment" forces of leaking such information with "ulterior motives."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said an unequivocal declaration by President Nixon would clear up the matter for Kissinger.

"I do and I think that's what ought to happen," Humphrey said in response to a question on a radio interview (CBS-Capitol Cloakroom).

"Listen, no man in the government of the United States in any administration does these things (wiretapping) without presidential approval or authorization," Humphrey said. "I cannot imagine that anybody would initiate this on his own and surely without presidential approval, and I cannot imagine J. Edgar Hoover taking orders from any underling."

An attempt by Rep. Joseph Maraziti, R-N.J., to have the House Judiciary Committee hold an open hearing today to declare its confidence in Kissinger was ruled out of order by chairman Peter Rodino, R-N.J.

The Senate resolution will be referred to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which already has voted unanimously to reinvestigate Kissinger's role in wiretaps. No action on the resolution is expected before the conclusion of the investigation.

The key paragraph of the resolution, introduced by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., states "that the United States holds in high regard Dr. Kissinger, and regards him as an outstanding member of this administration, as a patriotic American in whom it has complete confidence, and whose integrity and veracity are above reproach."

No Summer Gas Shortages Seen

Oil industry experts think motorists will enjoy adequate gasoline supplies during the summer, barring an unforeseen crisis.

But to prevent any shortage, motorists must continue conservation measures of recent months, including the 55 m.p.h. speed limit, a UPI survey indicates.

John Lichtblau, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, said "sporadic" shortages could develop because of distribution problems but they would be "nothing to be concerned about."

"There's nothing on the horizon at the moment to even suggest that there will be a shortage," he said. "There's more than enough gasoline available now and for the near future."

He said recent statistics showed that gas demand currently is "slightly" below a year ago, and it could rise as much as three per cent without creating a supply problem.

Total nationwide gasoline stocks today stand at 228 million barrels compared to 200 million barrels a year ago, he said.

He said the increase in gasoline prices was a major ingredient in curtailing demand. Without the increases, demand might have soared as much as 6 per cent from a year earlier.

"And it would be wise if motorists continued to adhere to the 55 mile an hour speed limit," he said.

A similar comment came from a spokesman for Shell Oil Co.

"If conservation efforts are maintained or intensified this summer, there could be an apparent temporary oversupply of gasoline and other oil products," the Shell spokesman said.

Abandonment of these efforts, he said, probably would mean a rise in consumption above the levels in effect before the Arab oil embargo and "another crisis could be in the making."

He pointed to a recent statement by John Sawhill, Federal Energy Office administrator, that a gasoline shortage of 3 to 4 per cent could be in prospect unless motorists continue to conserve.

A spokesman for Exxon Corp. said he anticipated no supply shortage in the coming months, adding that "the need to conserve supplies must be continued."

Open Space Priorities Announced

Six properties totaling 185.6 acres were named as "top priorities" for purchase as open space by the Corte Madera Town Council last night.

Meeting in special session to hear the wishes of an audience of 50 persons, the council selected the lands from 19 sites listed as potential open space in the town's proposed general plan.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said the council discussed a possible bond issue for next March to finance purchase of the six parcels but did not know how large the measure would have to be to buy all six. He said town staff will determine the bond amount.

The six parcels are: an eight-acre site east of Church of All Faiths; 75 acres along the Tiburon Ridge; 65.5 acres on the North Ridge, including the Nichelini property and Taralara estate; 13 acres in Upper Hidden Valley; a 21.5-acre triangular marsh near Marin Country Day School and a 2.6-acre site east of that marsh.

Little League Relents, Votes To Allow Girls To Play Ball

National Little League officials have decided to allow girls to play baseball with the boys. The decision will give local coaches discretion to decide who makes the team and who doesn't, regardless of sex.

Previously, any local Little League team with girls on its roster was threatened with an automatic loss of its league charter.

Now athletes like 11-year-old Jenny Fulle of Tamalpais Valley — who has been playing for a Mill Valley team since April 11 — will be free of harassment.

Miss Fulle had fought a year-long legal battle against sex discrimination in the league.

She was signed on by the Mill Valley Bears after Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph W. G. Wilson signed a temporary order instructing the Mill Valley Little League to allow her to play, and blocking Little League Baseball, Inc. from stripping the team of its charter.

In yesterday's announcement at Williamsport, Pa., league officials said girls who want to play Little League baseball must prove to local management and coaches that they are of "equal competency" with boys "in baseball skills, physical skills, and other attributes used as the basis for team selection."

The league's board of directors said the ruling is effective immediately. But it still must be formally approved by the Congress, since the Little League, founded in 1939, has been operating under a federal charter the past 10 years.

"Little League baseball shall defer to the changing social climate and will permit girls to register for local league participation," the officials said.

"The implication that the program is unwilling to change or incompetent to solve its own problems is simply not true."

The officials said any disputes should be handled at the local level and that "any action in this regard be responded to with firm conviction and forthright statements — that Little League does not discriminate and has feelings of ill will toward any sex, race, color or creed.

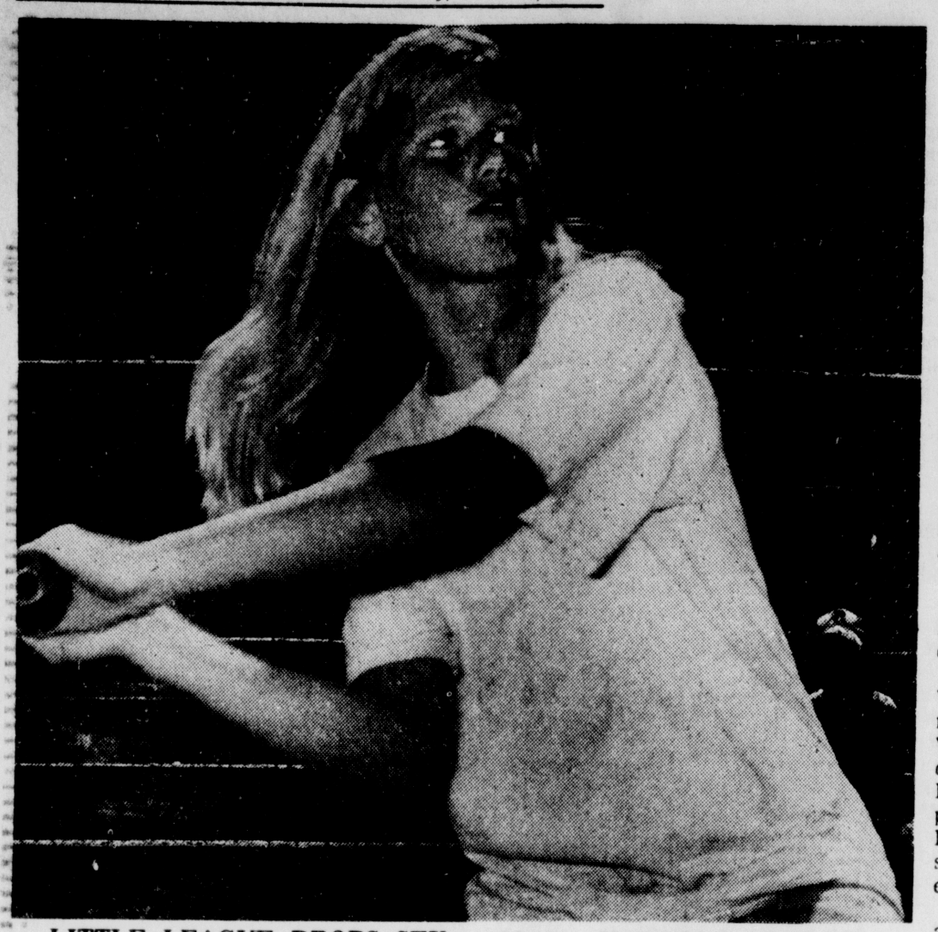
"In reaching a decision of landmark significance, the board has taken the position that it would be imprudent for an organization as large and universally represented as 35-year-old baseball to become embroiled in a public controversy."

The league, which began operations in 1939, currently has 2½ million boys playing in 31 countries.

Officials said they would continue to administer a softball program for girls which was begun this year and has an estimated 50,000 participants.

In New York, the National Organization for Women (NOW) issued a statement praising the league for changing "its discriminatory policy toward girls."

"NOW chapters and members throughout the county have devoted much effort to enacting this kind of change for equal sports opportunities for girls and women. This victory is an important step," the group said.



LITTLE LEAGUE DROPS SEX BAR — Jenny Fulle's free-swinging style was banned from Mill Valley Little League competition all last year because of the national little league ban on female athletes. Yesterday's announcement by Little League Baseball, Inc. will open competition to all female competitors who can swing with the boys.

Selection Of Crowe Jury Is Going Rather Slowly

Jury selection plodded slowly into its second day today in the trial of former Fairfax Town Administrator Robert E. Crowe on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Departing from customary procedure, Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick himself questioned each juror individually in the courtroom, while other potential jurors were kept out of earshot in another room.

Judge Broderick explained he was taking the added precautions because of publicity on the case, in which Crowe is accused of hitting 19-year-old Kenneth M. Davidson with an axe early on March 6, following a Fairfax council election.

The judge said he didn't want prospective jurors to hear the answers given by anyone who may have read of the case.

The prosecution and defense each have 10 peremptory challenges, and so far have weeded out five jurors that Broderick approved to sit on the case.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas said he probably will call 10 witnesses, including Fairfax police officers, Davidson and his two brothers, Tim and Larry, and possibly the boys' mother, as well as doctors who treated the youth after the brawl.

Richard Timan, Crowe's attorney, indicated he'll call Councilman Frank Egger, former Councilman Robert R. Souza and others for the defense case.

Judge Broderick said he expected the actual trial to begin this afternoon.

Boycott Ends

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong today ended a two-week boycott of talks to locate 1,100 Americans missing in action, but negotiations immediately bogged down over the issue of how many diplomatic privileges the Communist negotiators were entitled.

Israel Not Too Happy With Nixon

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel reacted cooly to President Nixon's lavish welcome in Egypt today, warning that closer Arab-American relations may strain the friendship between Jerusalem and Washington.

Israeli authorities, fearing a possible Arab guerrilla attack, also made clear that when Nixon visits the Jewish state Sunday his movements will be much more limited than during his current stay in Cairo.

They canceled plans for Nixon to make a tour of the sacred monuments in old Jerusalem, territory Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War.

The President will make a stop at the Yad Vashem memorial to the six million Jews killed by the Nazis in World War II. But such a visit is purely protocol and similar to visiting the tomb of the unknown soldier in another country.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, speaking at graduation exercises in the town of Rehovoth as Nixon arrived in Cairo, warned that warming relations between the United States and the Arabs may strain the U.S.-Israeli friendship.

"It is very possible that as a result of the American-Arab closing of ranks we shall also have to arrive at differences of opinion or a disparity in views between us and the United States," Rabin said.

He said he hoped that Washington, if it gives economic aid to Egypt and Syria, "will be sober-minded enough to realize that the appeal (for aid) is an important one to use and to take advantage of, but only for the purpose of advancing peace ... but by no means at the expense of the intimate and traditional friendship between Israel and the United States."

Nixon and his party will stay at Jerusalem's King David Hotel, which has been converted into a virtual White House in Israel. The 450 guests in the 250-room, 42-year-old hotel will check out the day Nixon arrives.

A Reagan Appointee Loses Bid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Under an avalanche of protest, the Senate Rules Committee yesterday refused to confirm Gov. Ronald Reagan's appointment of a $37,615-a-year workman's compensation commissioner.

Two Republican members of the committee failed to go to the aid of Robert W. Sigg, 52, who was Reagan's pick to a four-year term on the Workman's Compensation Appeals Board. The group offers the final administrative decisions on employee-employer disputes over workmen's compensation.

After lengthy testimony objecting to the appointment committee members declined to offer a motion on Sigg's behalf. But since there was no vote against him, Sigg will be allowed to remain as an acting commissioner under the end of Reagan's term this year, but no longer, unless the committee takes up the matter again or Reagan withdraws the appointment.

The action was significant because it followed protests from Senate Democrats against "deathbed" appointments by Reagan which would carry over into the administration of a new governor.

Commissioners to the appeals board require confirmation by two-thirds of the Senate, as do many other high-level appointments.

At the same time, the committee approved 14 other Reagan appointees, those which the committee determined were "noncontroversial." Rules Committee approval is the first step in the confirmation process.

Still another appointment — Patricia Gayman as director of the Department of Consumer Affairs — was not brought up as scheduled during the hearing. Miss Gayman, Reagan's former appointments secretary and now acting director of the department, has aroused opposition from some consumer groups.

She will continue her position as acting director.

Sigg, formerly chairman of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, was strongly opposed by organized labor and two Senate Democratic leaders — floor leader George Moscone of San Francisco and caucus chairman Nicholas C. Petris of Oakland.

They argued Sigg's record was weighted against workers.

Committee Chairman James R. Mills, D-San Diego, said the objections raised were more than for any other appointment he had ever seen.

SURVEY REVEALS

Women's Rights Rate High With Teen-Agers In Marin

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Marin teen-agers' beliefs and attitudes are compared with national attitudes disclosed by Helen and Sue Bottel's Teen-Age Survey in their column, Generation Rap.)

By HELEN BOTTEL

Three-fourths of San Rafael area correspondents approved of equal rights for women, and 92 per cent okayed mothers working ostside the home, though many added, "Only if it's necessary for money reasons." An employed mother, yes, they implied, but a "career" mother — no.

Clearly, they preferred jobs to be secondary in their own mothers' lives, although a good portion of females in our survey said they hoped for rewarding lifetime careers as well as marriage.

More so than the average U.S. teen-agers, 60 per cent of San Rafael youth would fight the draft if the country "were involved in another overseas war such as Vietnam." And 92 per cent believe there will be such a war in their lifetime.

HERE ARE more local highlights from Independent-Journal readers' answers to our national survey:

Although most young people reported good communication with their parents, at least half think it could be bettered. But in Marin County, only about one-fourth (as compared with 50 per cent elsewhere) think "they could tell me something about sex that I don't already know."

Local youth resoundingly agreed that their parents love each other ("But I wish they'd show it more!" many added.) Some two-thirds rated their folks' marriages "good to excellent," but only 32 per cent want marriages like those of their parents.

"Mom and Dad are good people, but don't enjoy each other enough," wrote Jackie from Novato. "Marriage and kids shouldn't take the fun out of life — and it won't for me."

FATHERS CAME in for considerable criticism:

Two-thirds of teen-agers queried said they could relate better to their mothers, and a number implied they "keep out of Dad's way as much as possible, and vice versa."

"He's grouchy when he's home and he won't listen to my side," a Tiburon boy wrote.

"I wish my father's company manners would extend to the family!" several other teen-agers complained.

Nearly three-fourths said their parents "agree on their discipline." This is 15 per cent better than the national average and reinforces the overall impression gained from our survye, that family ties are closer in the Marin area — despite that slight aversion to fathers. More than half believe "my parents understand me, at least most of the time." Only 36 per cent accused their elders of rigidly "laying down the law" without discussion or explanation.

But 64 per cent said their folks judge teen-agers "by the way they dress and wear their hair." This is somewhat higher than the national estimate.

Tomorrow: How Teen Views Differ.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Survey Shows More Teen-Age Virgins Than Even They Think

We discovered in our Generation Rap Parent Survey last year, that adults guessed the incidence of virginity among teen-agers as much lower than it actually is.

"Three-fourths of all those other kids," they pessimistically estimated, were nonvirgin before they reached age 20 . . . but not their own!

In our Teen-age Questionnaire, we find young people's estimate of virginity among their peers is also low. While their answers revealed an average 65 per cent of teen-agers are still holdouts, they guessed that only 31 per cent of 19-year-olds, and 50 per cent of 16-year-olds are in this classification.

Surprisingly, in the West, where teen-age virginity is at its lowest (58 per cent), young people came closer in their guessing; and in the East, where the virginity rate appears to be at its highest (70 per cent), teen-agers figured only about half that many were virgins.

Another surprise: the Midwest and South, traditionally conservative, reported fewer virgins than did the East (67 per cent), and teen-age residents here guessed that less than one-third (from 26 to 35 per cent) of their 19-year-old peers could make this claim.

These estimates bear out a fact of human nature: those who don't partake usually believe almost everyone else does — be it booze, pot, sex, adultery, divorce, or whatever.

Notwithstanding, 37 per cent of our teen-agers expect to be virgin when married, although three-fourths believe unwed sex — with love and commitment — is okay.

More highlights of our survey:

Although 46 per cent of our respondents feel the illegal drug problem is diminishing among teen-agers, 55 per cent believe drug abuse is still a major concern.

("It isn't being played up in the news so much lately, but there's a lot of dope around, believe me, and of course everyone smokes pot," said a New Jersey college student. According to our figures, 44 per cent of teen-agers have tried marijuana; almost half want it legalized, and 68 per cent think penalties for private use should be lessened.)

Fewer young people (38 per cent) considered excessive use of alcohol a major teen-age problem, and three-fourths favored legal liquor at age 18.

Parents, who voted teen-age rebellion and noncommunication their major worries, may wonder a bit when they read that 79 per cent of their children say they "generally go along with parental rules and decisions, even though they don't always agree with them." (An Oklahoma boy added, "I have to, or else!"

Some 55 per cent of respondents said that through discussion, they were sometimes able to change their folks' viewpoints.

A Minnesota girl wrote, "Mom's going back to college since we started our 'liberation raps,' and Dad doesn't pound the table and holler any more when I mention living-together-before-marriage, or my black friends." (Nevertheless, the kids rated the new morality and minority races the two subjects on which they and their parents were most likely to clash.) Only 22 per cent and 37 per cent respectively could agree with their elders' ideas here.

One-third of our respondents thought their parents did not tell them the whole truth about what they did when they were young, but several added, "Why should they? It's none of our business."

Adults who claim teen-agers get into trouble because "life is too easy, and they don't have enough work to keep them busy," might be startled to hear that 80 per cent of our teen-agers reported they have specific household duties, and 49 per cent hold outside jobs. Countless students wrote, "I do all the cleaning and cooking while my Mother works" . . . "I've got a 20- (10-, 15-, 30-) hour-a-week job after school and on weekends" . . . "I do my studying while baby-sitting" . . .

That kids don't believe they are being raised permissively is indicated by answers to several of our survey questions: A total of 46 per cent rated their parents overanxious or overprotective (but near half said they were "okay most of the time"). And 48 per cent said they will be "less strict" with their future children, although 84 per cent gave their parents gold stars for raising them well.

To "Do your parents agree on your discipline?" 61 per cent answered, "Yes," adding that Mother is the main disciplinarian in 48 per cent of the homes, Father in 36 per cent, and only in 11 per cent of families is the job shared equally.

"Which parent are you able to talk to best?" — Mother got the nod from 64 per cent of our respondents, Father from 13 per cent; both from 12 per cent; and neither from 11 per cent.

The question, "Do you think marriage is going out of style?" brought a solid 79 per cent "No" vote. Wrote a Tennessee doctor's daughter, "Marriage as a dictatorship has already gone out. As a partnership it is just getting started, but marriage as a way of life will continue as long as civilization."

Men Will Learn What Lib's About

The Marin Women's Center is sponsoring a workshop for men beginning Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Young Women's Christian Association, 1618 Mission Avenue in San Rafael.

Focus will be on an awareness of what the women's movement is about and what other men around the country are doing, according to Sally Albanese, who will coordinate the first meeting.

The men's group will continue on Tuesdays for six weeks.

Summer School Session Is Set

The Junior School in San Rafael will hold a summer session for children aged 2½ to 5½ years old, beginning July 9.

School hours will be from 9 to 11:45 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, with crafts, music, nature studies, story time and play featured.

Wednesdays will be "trip day" for 4 and 5-year-old youngsters from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The group will visit eight parks and beaches in Marin through the summer.

Summer session will conclude Aug. 29, according to Willa Quillen, school director.

YWCA Classes To Start June 24

New classes scheduled to begin the week of June 24 at the Marin Young Women's Christian Association are backyard gardening and landscape, Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m., taught by Karen Bruno; and theater techniques for adults, Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m., taught by Julia Gillett.

Advance registration is required and can be made by calling the YWCA, 1618 Mission Avenue in San Rafael.

NATALIE WEIL of Greenbrae is retiring tomorrow after 15 years as a teacher in the Marin County Schools Special Education hearing impairment program. She has seen tremendous growths in the program, which was contained in one room in 1959, when she began teaching. Her goal has been to help children with hearing impairments to become part of the hearing world.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Tomorrow To Mark 'Second Retirement'

By JOAN LISETOR

Much of Natalie Weil's life has been spent helping hearing impaired children become part of the hearing world.

Mrs. Weil is retiring tomorrow after 15 years as a teacher in the Marin County Schools Special Education hearing impaired program. Actually it is Mrs. Weil's second retirement. She taught for five years in her native San Francisco prior to her marriage. She moved to Marin County 31 years ago.

During her first 17-year "retirement" she and her husband, Si, reared a family — Rick, who now lives in San Francisco, John in New York, Phil in Claremont, and Janet, who is attending her mother's alma mater, Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., working toward a master's degree in special education.

She also did volunteer work for the Marin Easter Seals Society and was active in various clubs. She was doing "a little of this and a little of that" when she heard the county schools needed another special education teacher.

MRS. WEIL started in 1959 when the entire program was in one classroom with two teachers at Marindale School. Soon the program grew to four classes at Gallinas School.

Four additional classes were added last year when a new facility was built at A. E. Kent School to house an infant class, a class for hearing impaired and blind children, a total communication class and classes for junior high school students. High school students are attending Terra Linda High School.

"The program has grown tremendously, and last year Mary Ellen McCann was hired as a supervising teacher. In her first years she has pulled the program together," Mrs. Weil said.

Her job for the past few years has been to work with children in the program who are integrated into regular classrooms. She travels between six schools every day, working on a one-to-one basis with the students.

"My job is to assist the teachers and serve as liaison between teachers and parents," she said. "My goal is to have them integrated into regular classrooms."

She works on academic subjects — except math, her weak point, she said, and they also cover speech and language as well as listening and auditory skills, vocabulary and comprehension.

"THE MAIN focus is on communicating orally. People have the mistaken idea that the deaf use sign language. Our Marin program is oral because the children are part of the hearing world. They need communication skills to become integrated into the community," she said. "They are not hearing impaired children. They are children who have a hearing impairment."

Mrs. Weil said she was tired of being asked what she is going to do when she retires.

"I tell people what I'm going to do is go streaking," she said. "There is a lot I'd like to do — see the world, for instance, so I thought I should quit while I can still walk around.

"I can't think of life without the kids. I'll probably come back as a volunteer and do some substitute teaching."

American Traditional Furniture, Today, As In The Past, Is Still One Of The Finest Investments In The Future It Is Possible To Make!

You are invited to browse the many beautiful settings and vignettes of American Traditional Furniture at Colony House on the Miracle Mile. Early American, or "Colonial" Furniture actually arose during two periods; before the American Revolution (1620 to 1795) and after, (1795-1847). In the pre-revolutionary period, the colonists' designs were fashioned after the styles of Chippendale and Louis XIV of France, with many influences from the Dutch. However, Colonial styles were plainer and often sturdier than the foreign models. After the Revolution, furniture designs in America turned away from British styles and favored French designs. Decoration included such motifs as the acanthus leaf, lyres, pineapples, winged griffin feet, lion and bear claws. The "broken arch" as seen in our illustration was widely used. More examples can be seen on our showroom floor.

LOGIC LACKING

The Irrational Diet-Watchers

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Weight-conscious people are irrational. They'll skip cream in their coffee but eat a whole pound of steak at one meal.

That's a bad trade-off, says Dr. Sami A. Hashim, head of nutrition and metabolic research at St. Luke's Hospital here.

"I'd rather see a man eat only half a pound of steak and have all the cream he wants in his coffee. Two tablespoons of light cream contain only 54 calories, but a pound of steak has about 1,000," Dr. Hashim said in an interview.

His work focuses on atherosclerosis and obesity. He said he's not looking specifically for links between the two.

HE IS a strong believer in behavior modification that changes obese patients' eating patterns.

For starters, each overweight person is asked to answer about 600 questions. He's asked not just what he ate and when, but what else was on the table.

The idea is to turn off appetites by keeping extra food out of sight.

The doctor said tests show an overweight person generally will not push to get food when he is deprived of it by an understocked refrigerator or pantry.

"To stop overeating and to encourage exercise in our society is a hell of a problem," Dr. Hashim said.

"THERE'S HARDLY a magazine, a television commercial, or supermarket with 50,000 different varieties of food, that doesn't pressure us to eat.

"The overweight individual is influenced by these external pressures. The non-obese responds more to internal cues, to hunger."

Dr. Hashim's tips for homemakers who have to cope with a family overweight problem are based to some extent on personal experience. He took off 15 pounds by systematically monitoring his own intake, and keeping away from temptations. He said he eats beef only once a week or less, and fish at least six days a week.

He's given up lamb altogether, although it is the staple meat in the typical Lebanese household. He was born in Lebanon but brought to the United States in infancy.

His advice for other people with weight problems includes:

If your spouse brings in food he or she shouldn't eat, start shopping together. This sometimes helps.

CLEAR FOOD from the table as soon as a meal is over.

Never put a whole loaf of bread on the table.

Don't leave snacks around. Studies show an obese person continues to feed himself when there is an abundance of food either in sight or in the refrigerator.

Serve drinks in opaque containers. Research shows most fatties drink much more from a clear glass than from one that hides the liquid.

Sweeten your coffee or tea with sugar (18 calories a teaspoon) if you like, but don't eat cake, a sweet roll or ice cream with it. Even two or three teaspoonfuls of sugar contain far fewer calories than the desserts.

Dr. Hashim also recommends gardening, especially if you plant low-calorie vegetables such as celery, zucchini squash and tomatoes. It's impossible to overeat vegetables, he said.

Canning Process Does A Big Job

DENVER (UPI) — A new aseptic canning process announced by a California company makes it possible to pack fruit and vegetables safely in 55 gallon drums. A drum is comparable to 75 No. 10 cans of the sort used for institutional feeding.

The process permits canning in natural juices without syrups, according to the School Foodservice Journal here.

Phony Honey

DAVIS (UPI) — Because so many things are becoming "imitation" these days, the state of California has passed a law banning sale of "imitation honey." Officials say this will protect not only the bees and beekeepers, but the crops which need pollination.

Designer Victor Joris has put a gunmetal velvet smock shirt-jacket over a wool plaid circular skirt, while Calvin Klein teamed a chocolate velvet blazer with a matching large skirt.

TO CATCH THE FRINGES OF THE UNIVERSE

The heart of the largest telescope in the Southern Hemisphere (top photo), a giant mirror 158 inches (four meters) in diameter, undergoes final tests at Kitt Peak National Observatory in Tuscon, Ariz. The new telescope and its mirror are destined for the Cerro Tololo Inter-American Observatory near La Serena, Chile (bottom). With it, astronomers will for the first time in southern reaches be able to probe the very fringes of the known universe, some several billion light years away. (UPI Telephotos)

Reagan Raps Courts For Lenience

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan told county sheriffs yesterday that although it is the job of the courts to protect society some of them view the problem of crime as a "legal chess game."

"The rights of the victims are lost in the shuffle while every point of law is stretched to give the criminal the benefit of every technicality and loophole," Reagan said.

In remarks prepared for the California Sheriff's Association, the governor also said he was "afraid too many of the lawmakers view the problem as a sociological study, a delaying action while they discuss social reforms to eliminate all the causes of human misery."

"Some of our courts persist in viewing the problem of crime as a legal chess game," he added.

To succeed in controlling crime, Reagan said, there "must be a turn away from permissiveness and a more determined stand in favor of strong, effective law enforcement.

"Those who rob and kill are not romantic revolutionaries engaged in expressing their political discontent. They are thieves and murderers. And if we are to have a lawful society, we must use every resource at our command to track them down and bring them to justice," he said.

Reagan said he sponsored a law this year imposing an automatic mandatory minimum prison sentence for heroin pushers and for those who use a deadly weapon illegally, but it died in the legislature.

Now, he added, the California Peace Officers Association is sponsoring an initiative campaign to put the measure on the ballot.

"The people will vote for a tougher sentencing standard just as they voted over-whelmingly to reinstate capital punishment two years ago, if they get the chance," Reagan said.

"I will admit we should not have to do this," the governor said. "It is the job of the legislature and the courts to protect society, to send the guilty to prison and to revise the law when circumstances require it for more effective law enforcement. They have not done this."

The measure, the Mandatory Sentencing Initiative, will require 325,554 signatures by the end of this month to qualify for the November ballot.

Reagan said if that initial effort fails "we can collect signatures until Sept. 10 and have a special election."

Woes Seen For Those Needing Unleaded Gas

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (UPI) — The state Air Resources Board said yesterday that the owners of 1975 catalytic converter equipped cars which require unleaded gas could be in "dire straits" in terms of getting fuel.

Based on a staff survey, the board said "it is expected that an adequate supply of unleaded gasoline will be available in the large cities beginning July 1."

But, the board added, "the availability of unleaded fuels in all parts of the state is not assured. This is particularly true in sparsely populated sections."

The board, meeting here for two days, pointed out that most 1975 model passenger vehicles sold in California will employ catalytic emission control systems to meet exhaust standards. The cars must be operated on unleaded gasoline.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency, in order to assure an adequate supply of unleaded gas for those vehicles, earlier initiated several regulations.

One requires retail gas outlets which sell more than 200,000 gallons of gas a year to offer at least one grade of unleaded gas by next month.

Stations which do not sell that much gas — such as those in sparsely populated or rural areas — are not affected.

"A serious problem could develop in the future in the event of another fuel crisis," a board report said.

"Should pre-1975 car owners ordinarily using leaded gasoline switch to unleaded fuel because of a shortage, the owners of catalytic equipped cars would be in dire straits," it added.

The report also pointed out that "although unleaded fuel is required July 1, the major demand is not expected to occur until after the new models are available for purchase. This usually occurs after mid-September."

New Views By Kosygin On Peace

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said yesterday the Soviet Union supports "total and complete disarmament" as the best guarantee to world peace.

In one of a series of speeches by Soviet chiefs preceding Sunday's elections to the Supreme Soviet (parliament), Kosygin said:

"We are for the continuation and deepening of the lessening of international tension in order to make it irreversible, for total and complete disarmament, which is the best guarantee of peace."

But he said cooperation on disarmament could only come on the basis of " equal security and the inadmissibility of one-sided advantages."

Kosygin spoke for 85 minutes in the Bolshoi Theater, forcing last-minute cancellation of the touring La Scala company's production of "Tosca."

He said he hoped the June 27 visit of President Nixon would "strengthen the mainstays of peace," but warned detente did not mean the end of the ideological struggle.

Army Worms Invade Areas Of Ethiopia

ROME (UPI) — A plague of army worms has hit a wide area of Ethiopia, destroying crops just planted following a severe drought, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization said yesterday.

It said the worms, which at one stage of their development become flies and may move with the wind as far as 62 miles overnight, have spread across 15,500 square miles of farmland.

INVERNESS FESTIVAL

Three To Compete For Young Musician Awards

A trombonist and a cellist from San Rafael and a pianist from Mill Valley will compete July 7 for the Inverness Music Festival's young musicians awards.

The three are finalists in a competition sponsored by the festival to encourage development of young musical talent in Marin County.

They are Joe Alessi, 14, trombonist; Jed Barahal, 18, cellist, and Jeff Kahane, 17, pianist.

They will appear in concert July 7 at 8 p.m. in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at the Civic Center. Each will play a complete concerto with the Inverness Festival Orchestra, directed by Hugo Rinaldi.

First place winner will receive a $600 award donated by the Independent-Journal; the other two will receive $200 awards donated by Andre Paris and Harry Connick.

The prize competition concert will be one of 17 July events presented by the Inverness Music Festival, which will be presented throughout the county this year. The series will open with a concert by harpist Marcella Decray at 8 p.m. July 5 at St. Columba's Church, Inverness.

Joe Alessi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alessi Sr. of San Rafael, is a freshman at Terra Linda High School and has studied trombone for five years. His father, a well known musician, has been among his instructors.

Joe is first trombonist with the Marin Youth Orchestra, the Orchestra Piccolo and the State Honor Band. He was a finalist in the Pepsi-Cola-San Francisco Symphony young artist competition.

Jed Barahal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Barahal of San Rafael, is a San Rafael High School graduate and has studied cello for 10 years, including studies at the Geneve Conservatory of Music in Switzerland and with Pierre Fournier in Zurich and Paul Tortelier in France. He is attending the Julliard School of Music in New York on a scholarship.

JED BARAHAL
A finalist

JOE ALESSI
Trombonist

He has been cellist with the Marin Youth Orchestra, World Youth Orchestra at Interlocken, Mich., and the All-California Youth Orchestra, and has soloed with the Marin Symphony Orchestra and the Fremont-Newark Philharmonic Orchestra. He presented a solo recital in last year's Inverness Music Festival and has been awarded the Maurice Wilk Memorial Scholarship of Dominican College and the Marin Symphony Association Memorial Award.

Jeff Kahane, a resident of Mill Valley, is studying at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. He began his study of piano in Los Angeles at the age of 4 and at age 15 was awarded a Rockefeller Foundation scholarship to study at the San Francisco Conservatory. He won the conservatory's annual concerto competition in 1972; the Pueblo, Colo., young artist competition in 1973, and the piano category of the Pepsi-Cola-San Francisco Symphony young artist competition in March of this year.

Judges who selected the three finalists were Albert A. Renna, director of music for San Francisco public schools; Dan Patiris of the faculty of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, and Martha Ideler, piano teacher and concert pianist. Judges for the final awards have not yet been announced.

Tickets for the competition recital and other events of the month-long festival may be obtained from Carole Berg of Kentfield, festival president, or from Inverness Music Festival, P. O. Box 2, Inverness 94937.

Suit Is Filed Against Couple

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Patty Duke and her husband, actor John Astin, were sued yesterday for $2 million by their former financial consultant, whom they accused of stealing from her.

The slander suit was filed by Joseph P. Stich, who is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 19 on charges of misappropriating $30,000 of Miss Duke's funds while managing her accounts. He accused the Astins of making false and malicious statements to injure his professional standing.

Bernstein Named Lecturer At MIT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Conductor-composer Leonard Bernstein has been named institute lecturer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The long-time conductor of the New York Philharmonic and composer of such contemporary music as the scores for "West Side Story" and "On The Town," Bernstein has devoted much time to lecturing in music, including an assignment last year at Harvard.

Cory Asked To Limit Spending

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican controller nominee William T. Bagley yesterday asked his Democratic rival, Kenneth Cory, to agree to a $427,000 campaign spending limit for the November general election.

Bagley, an assemblyman from San Rafael, said the $427,000 limit would be equal to 3 cents per voting age person. The figure, he added, was specified in Prop. 9, which was approved by the voters in the primary but which does not take effect until 1975.

"Since you have spent almost double that amount to secure the primary nomination and since your expenditures were six or seven fold more than mine in the primary, you already have had the advantage of heavy exposure," Bagley said in a letter to Cory.

In response, Cory said, "The only problem I have with his proposal, at this time, is that I want to bring the issues in this race before the people, while he is trying to ride the shirttails of news generated by someone else."

Cory's "shirttail" remark was in reference to gubernatorial contenders Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Houston Flournoy agreeing to a spending limit.

Cory, an assemblyman from Westminster, challenged Bagley to five public debates "for I see television and newspaper only as a means of getting issues in front of the voting public."

First For Black

DALLAS (UPI) — Charles M. King, a minister from Frankfort, Ky., yesterday was elected a second vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention to become the first Negro to hold a convention post in the denomination's 129-year history.

FAMILY

"George" — A bachelor airline pilot who lives in Switzerland, has to pet sit his sister's 250 pound St. Bernard dog while she is on her honeymoon. The dog has a fear of cats and the problems he presents is a riot. Good fun for all.

"Mr. Super Invisible" — Dean Jones as a kooky scientist and intrigue and invisibility complicate his life, not to mention a lovable sheepdog and a mischievous chimp.

"Twelve Chairs" — A hilarious examination of greed done in slapstick style. Jewels sewn into one of 12 chairs create havoc among those trying to trace them.

"Where the Lilies Bloom" — A gentle, funny and loving drama about a motherless family living in contemporary Appalachia. The four children struggle to conceal the death of their father, so they would not be sent to an orphanage, reveals their true potential. See this one by all means.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"American Graffiti" — Well-made movie captures look of life in the fifties as four high school grads cruise through one night. Cursing, sex scenes.

"Cold Turkey" — Contemporary satirical comedy about a whole town kicking the cigarette habit for a $25 million prize. Fantastic national publicity, neurotic characters and greed exposes the worst in every one. Cursing.

"Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry" — Racing driver robs a supermarket to buy a super car. The ensuing sustained chase is the plot. Fast action, plenty of violence. (Boxoffice Magazine).

"The Great Gatsby" — A quixotic hero accumulates a fortune for the love of a rich Southern belle and is then destroyed by her carelessness. Elegant 20s trappings, beautiful photography. Some violence.

"Last American Hero" — Based on life of a real stock car driver, who climbed to success while his father was in jail for moonshining. Film conveys positive family relationships. Some cursing, brief sex scene.

"Sleeper" — This sophisticated comedy combines science-fiction with satire and slapstick. The computerized world of 2173 provides Woody Allen with hilarious opportunities. Sexual references.

"Sometimes a Great Notion" — Oregon lumbering family defy labor union call to strike. A feud within the family complicates their efforts to fulfill their contracts. Violence, cursing, vivid action and magnificent scenery.

"Sugarland Express" — A pointless tragic-comedy about a young parolee who helps her husband break out of jail. They hyjack a policecar and a cop so they can kidnap their baby before he can be adopted. (They were declared unfit parents). Violence-cursing.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Bananas" — An outrageous spoof on love, sex, war, violence, politics, religion, the medical profession, etc. Woody Allen covers all bases in this raucous satire.

"Billy Jack" — Unusual film, attempts to comment on most of the problems facing youth today, takes place at an Indian Reservation School. Graphic rape scene, violence, cursing.

"Capt. Kronos" — A vampire hunter and a hunchback team up to free a village plagued by vampires. The dead are revived, blood spattered all over the place, sex scenes and some exciting sword fighting.

"Jeremiah Johnson" — An ex-soldier seeks refuge after the war in the savage Rockies among the Crow Indians. They admire and fear his strength of character until he breaks a tribal taboo. Their vengence is sadistic. Violence is intrinsic in the life-style portrayed but is still devastating.

"The Sting" — A pair of cool 1930s con-men set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Violence, cursing, but good entertainment for the mature.

"Thief Who Came to Dinner" — A disillusioned man turns jewel thief, a likeable rogue. Even the insurance investigator is conned into letting him escape. Another dose of crime-does-pay tale, the last thing we need.

Adults Only

"Blazing Saddles" — Mel Brooks bawdy Western travesty has brilliant bits amidst tedious, tasteless stretches. Much cursing.

"Thunderbold and Lightfoot" — A caper film that touches all the sexual chords along the way. A gang repeat a bank vault robbery. Very cynical, foul language, nudity, very violent. (Film Information).

WIRED FOR POUNDS — Maria Gray, a svelte 100-pounder when she got married 17 years ago, decided she'd better regain her figure when she noticed her Navy husband looking at "oo many bikinis." Though she had already trimmed down from 249 to 195, Mrs. Gray had her mouth wired shut by a doctor at Oak Knoll Naval Hospital in Oakland to speed up the process. When she can get back into her bikini the wires come out, she said.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

Famed U.S. Army Gen. Winfield Scott was born June 13, 1786.

On this day in history:

In 1877, the Russo-Turkish War began.

In 1944, Germany began using its "buzz bomb" secret weapon on England during World War II.

A thought for the day: Irish poet William Butler Yeats, born on this day in 1865, said, "The years like great black oxen tread the world and God, the herdsman, goads them on behind."

South Proves In Luck; Slam Can Be Made Without A Risk

Sometimes it is important to take a finesse because you are safe whether the finesse wins or loses. In this situation you can forget about the usual rules of finessing.

RUFFS IN DUMMY

West opened the jack of diamonds, and declarer ruffed in dummy. South drew two rounds of trumps and led out the ace and king of clubs. West eventually got a club trick, and East the king of hearts.

Everybody at the table agreed that South had been the victim of hard luck. Who would take a club finesse with only four cards in the suit missing?

As the cards lie South can make his contract without risk and without guesswork.

Declarer ruffs the first diamond in dummy and draws two rounds of trumps. He leads a club to the ace, returns to his hand with a trump and cashes the ace of diamonds, discarding a heart from dummy.

FINESSE IS SAFE

South is now home no matter how the clubs are divided. He leads a club from his hand toward dummy, waiting to see what West does.

If West plays low, South takes the finesse. As it happens the finesse wins, so all is well. If the finesse lost, East would win with the blank queen. A diamond return would allow South to ruff while dummy discarded the last low heart. If East returned a heart instead of a diamond, declarer would get a free finesse.

STILL IS SAFE

Even if East had Q-x-x of clubs, South would still be safe. In that case, West would discard when South led a club toward dummy. Seeing the situation, declarer would put up the king of clubs and give East his club trick. East's return would give South the slam.

VISAS IN HAND — Russian ballet dancer Valery Panov shows exit visas for himself and his wife, enabling them to leave the Soviet Union tomorrow for Israel. Panov told Western newsmen yesterday in Moscow that he would also pick up Austrian visas for a stopover in Vienna.

Soviet Dancer Can't Believe He's Leaving

MOSCOW (UPI) — Jewish ballet dancer Valery S. Panov made an eight-hour trip to Moscow today to collect Israeli and Austrian visas for him and his wife. He returned to Leningrad from where the couple will depart tomorrow.

"I still can't believe we're finally going," the former star of Leningrad's Kirov ballet company said as he left the Austrian embassy. "After more than two years of trying, it will take time to realize it."

Panov earlier visited the Dutch embassy which represents Israel here in the absence of diplomatic relations between Moscow and Jerusalem. He arrived on the overnight train from Leningrad and returned there by air in the afternoon.

Panov and his ballerina wife Galina, 25, were given permission to emigrate last week after a two-year fight. He said they would fly first from Leningrad to East Berlin and take another flight from there later in the day to Vienna.

They were given Soviet exit visas yesterday.

Humphrey Gives Up $100,000 Diamond Ring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., has joined the list of public officials returning foreign gifts of valuable jewelry to the government in compliance with a law making such gifts public property.

Washington Post columnist Maxine Cheshire reported that Humphrey yesterday gave back an eight-carat diamond worth more than $100,000 that had been given to him by Congolese President Joseph Mobuto in 1968, when Humphrey was vice president.

In recent weeks, President Nixon's wife and daughters, and the wives of former vice president Spiro Agnew, former Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Sen. J. William Fulbright have returned jewelry from Arab princes to the State Department's protocol office after years of keeping them as their own.

Mrs. Muriel Humphrey, the Post said, received 10 valuable baby leopard skins by a Somalian official during the same African trip, but could not return them because they were sold in 1970 for $7,500. The proceeds were donated to a school for the mentally retarded.

Humphrey, in a statement, said he did not know the law had applied to him, and said that at all times on his tour of Africa a State Department official was with him, and no one ever said anything about not keeping the gifts.

But the Post said Humphrey, through an aide, did in fact report the gifts in January 1968, and that they were on file in the State Department. According to the newspaper, he asked for the diamond and the leopard skins back one week before leaving the vice presidency.

A Quick Arrest In Bank Robbery

HEALDSBURG (UPI) — Sonoma County sheriff's deputies arrested a San Franciscan on a highway yesterday in the armed robbery two hours earlier of a bank branch at Ukiah.

Mitchell Spangler, 31, was apprehended on Highway 101 at Lytton, just north of Healdsburg.

Officers said they recovered $15,000 which had been taken from the bank and that Spangler was being bound over to the FBI.

William Hollen, manager of the Crocker Bank's branch in Ukiah, said a man handed him a note demanding $15,000 and displayed a .38 caliber pistol.

GRADUATION, THEN WHAT?

Tests Determine Future

By PAUL CANE
(Third of five articles)

There's the SAT and ACH tests put out by the ETS division of the CEEB. Some schools prefer applicants taking the ACT exam instead; well-prepared students might want to take AP tests in addition to others.

"It's all Greek to me," many a high school senior has groaned in despair.

The confusion is not unfounded.

Almost every college in the United States requires its applicants to submit scores from one or more of these tests. Some schools use them to make tough admissions decisions; others merely for class placement upon entrance.

Either way, students go into the three or four hours of testing keyed up and nervous, and most leave exhausted and mentally drained.

(Correct answer is "D")

Question: k squared =4, and j squared =9; which letter, k or j, represents the greater quantity?

(a) k is greater; (b) j is greater; (c) k=j; (d) insufficient information to determine correct answer.

(Correct answer is "D")

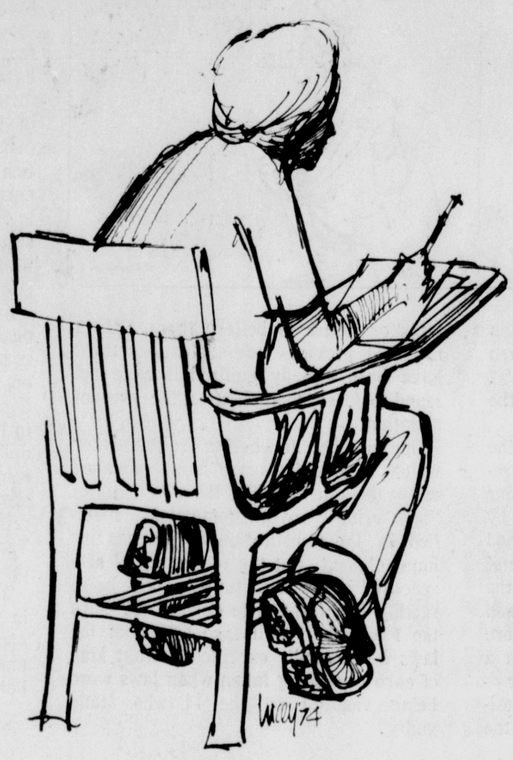
The Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), a creation of the Educational Testing Service of the College Entrance Examination Board, is one most frequently required by colleges. The University of California chain requires it, as do most private schools including Stanford University and the Ivy League colleges. (The California State University system and College of Marin require either the SAT or the American College Testing Service exam, the ACT.)

The four-hour SAT is divided into two subtests of verbal and mathematic aptitudes. A score from 200 to 800 is awarded for each section.



(Independent-Journal sketch by Jack Lucey)

The SAT is typically taken in the fall of the senior year, usually November. Some students, particularly those seeking "early decision" on their applications, take the SAT in the spring or summer of the junior year.

This test, like most others, is administered at one central location for a large number of students from several high schools. Application to take the test must be made in advance, and the $6.50 fee must be paid at that time.

Where the SAT measures potential to perform college work using an aptitude measure, the achievement tests (ACH) measure facts and analytical processes learned through high school in a variety of specific subjects.

Twelve topics are offered, and most colleges require that three one-hour tests be taken and scores submitted for admission and/or placement.

Most local high school seniors take three tests that fulfill the University of California entrance requirements — 1. English composition; 2. mathematics or science; 3. social studies or foreign language. A group of three tests costs $11; however, a special listening-reading combination foreign language exam costs more.

Private schools often use achievement test scores in conjunction with grades and extracurricular activities as a basis for deciding to admit a student.

This is not usually this case with the University of California system, although even for UC, achievement scores are used in class placement. For example, UC applicants strive hard to beat 550 on the English achievement test in order to escape the subject-A requirement — so-called "bonehead English."

The $6.50 ACT test, produced by a different company than the SAT and achievement tests, is more or less a combination of both aptitude and proficiency withon one exam.

The test is in four individual sections — English usage, natural science, social science and mathematics — each allotted 45 minutes. Each section is scored individually, and a composite total score is also computed.

Some schools allow applicants to take either the SAT or ACT — most that require one or the other require the SAT. Advanced placement (AP) examinations are not used in decisions of admission, but high scores on them enable students to place out of introductory-level college courses, and in some cases to get credit for them.

They are scored on a 1-5 point basis. Scores of 3, 4 or 5, and in some cases, even 2, are sufficient to merit placement or credit in college. Individual schools determine the acceptable score levels.

These exams, offered in various specific subjects in which students might have received accelerated training during high school, are always optional — they are never required for admission to any school.

Like IQ tests, most of the college board exams have been criticized by spokesmen for some racial groups as being "culturally biased" — that is, discriminatory against some group because of cultural upbringing.

Robert Cameron, western regional director of the college board, said he could not absolutely affirm that the tests are culture-fair, but maintained, "Whatever the ingredient of intelligence or aptitude that is needed for success in college is measured in our tests. They are an excellent predictor of success in handling college work."

A typical college applicant spends several of his Saturdays straining his brain with four hours of SATs, three hours of achievements, possibly a morning of ACTs, and maybe another day retaking one of these exams on which he did poorly the first time.

And the parade of tests does not end with these. As successful students near college graduation, many will again be run through the testing grinder with similar aptitude examinations for business, law or medical graduate school applications.

Redevelop Plans Seen Year Away

San Rafael's master plan for redevelopment will take 11 months to complete, the city Redevelopment Agency board learned last night.

The city council, acting as the Redevelopment Agency, was told by the two consultants that actual redevelopment can begin on schedule next spring if they begin work immediately.

Consequently, the agency board set meetings for Monday and Tuesday to discuss contracts with the consultants, Rockrise, Odermatt, Mountjoy and Amis, a physical planning firm, and economic planners Keyser-Marston Associates.

The physical planning firm will be paid $122,400 and Keyser-Marston will receive $45,-000. (Excluded from these price tags are costs for traffic and utility engineering studies which will be handled by other consultants.)

Convicted Wife Slayer Is Missing At Quentin

Prison authorities said they were "only hoping" that Neil Edward Darrow, 26, of Sacramento, had not escaped from prison grounds.

"He's kind of an escape artist," one officer said, "and that's why we had him in maximum."

Prison authorities issued an all-points bulletin for Darrow last night.

Darrow was last seen at 1 p.m. yesterday during a routine check-in. Maximum custody inmates are allowed some freedom within the prison, but must check in every two hours. Darrow —who was supposed to be a exercise period in the prison yard — did not check back at 3 p.m.

Darrow had been involved in two previous breaks — one from a county jail and an abortive attempt at Vacaville Medical Facility.

Prison officials are working on the assumption that Darrow may still be hiding on prison grounds, according to associate warden Kenneth D. Britt.

"Hideouts are not at all uncommon in places like San Quentin or Folsom where they have to beat the wall," Britt said. "They're likely to try to hold out until after dark when the chances of beating it are better."

During his trial, he produced what appeared to be a gun and ordered everyone in the courtroom to the floor. A bailiff fired a warning shot and Darrow was overpowered by deputies.

The gun he held turned out to be made of folded magazines.

Big Flag Will Fly Tomorrow

The biggest United States flag to fly in San Rafael will be ceremonially unfurled tomorrow — which is Flag Day — at 5:15 p.m. at 666 Irwin Street.

The 20-by-30-foot Stars and Stripes has been purchased by Scott Deming to fly over his Marin Tire and Brake building at that address. Its ceremonial raising will be the closing event of Flag Week observance by San Rafael Elks Lodge 1108. A Marine Corps color guard will participate.

Deming becomes the third member of the Elks Lodge in San Rafael to fly a large United States flag at his place of business. Others are Hector L. Viglienzone at Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury and R. L. Miller at Marin County Roofing Co.

In a joint statement today, Deming, Viglienzone and Miller declared:

"Some Americans do not feel that they live in the greatest country in the world. We do!... We are especially proud, in these times of anti-American movements and dissent, to display our country's colors in such a magnificent way as to possibly rally other proud Americans to a feeling of loyalty and of brotherhood so that we can work together in a positive way to make our country an even better place to live..."

Burton To Delay Taking New Post

There's some unfinished business Assemblyman John L. Burton wants to take care of before leaving his seat to enter Congress.

Burton said yesterday he will remain in the Legislature until June 24 so he can help with the enactment of some conservation legislation for Marin County and mental health improvements for San Francisco.

Burton won election in the June 4 election to the seat vacated by Rep. William S. Mailliard.

Bagley Will Debate Cory

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Republican and the Democratic candidates for state controller have agreed on face-to-face debates, but not on a campaign spending limit.

The debate proposal came from Democratic Assemblyman Ken Cory of Garden Grove. It was accepted yesterday by Republican Assemblyman William Bagley of San Rafael.

But Bagley's proposal to limit spending in the campaign to $427,000 per candidate, as specified in Prop. 9, has drawn neither acceptance nor rejection from Cory.

Prop. 9 is the political reform initiative approved by the voters last week. It doesn't go into effect until Jan. 7, 1975.

Dimensions Of Scandal Leave Public Numb

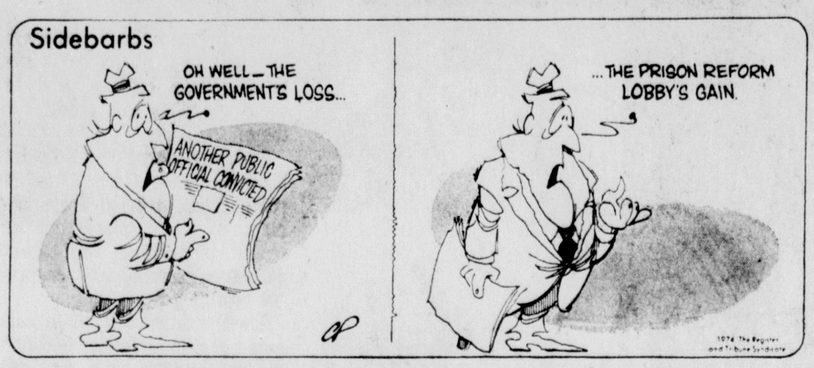
No less than 14 persons, some of them close associates, political aides, or campaign appointees of President Nixon, stand guilty of Watergate-related crimes. Eleven of them are self-confessed and the others have been found guilty in court. And there is former Vice-President Agnew, also self-admitted and found guilty of crime.

These are absolutely appalling facts. They are on the record. They cannot be denied. They were not fabricated by the news media or the political opposition.

At any other time in American history, just a few such crimes would have put intolerable pressure on the chief executive who, like President Nixon, publicly and properly accepted responsibility for the men he had brought to high office.

Yet nowadays, so sated are we all by sensation, that the total accumulation of unquestioned guilt almost escapes notice. The battle of impeachment drags on. The president does not resign. Estimates of the views of senators indicate that as of now, over a third of them would not support a verdict of guilty for the president himself. We live in strange and distorted times.

THE 14 FINDINGS of guilt for those closely associated with the White House are not the whole story. Forty-four men and 13 corporations have been charged with crimes associated in some way with the presidential crisis. Twenty-nine men and 12 corporations have pleaded guilty. And we are still far from the end of the road.



In the face of such evidence, the stoicism of the American people is remarkable. It is rather like persons under air bombardment in war, or beset by some great natural catastrophe like flood or drought. Life goes on. People do what they have to do. They cannot believe the dimensions of scandal. Their minds and emotions cease to react. Indeed, there are many people — apparently from a quarter to a third of the general public — who are still unswervingly loyal to President Nixon. Some of them ignore the facts or refuse to believe them. Others say that previous administrations must have been equally guilty but were not found out, so that excuses the present situation.

One may debate whether the crimes for which 14 associates are being punished raise the question for the president of "high crimes and misdemeanors" specified by the Constitution as grounds for impeachment. But the other ground also specified in the constitution cannot be so readily dismissed. The Constitution says the President "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." What kind of care was being taken when laws were being violated by the 14 who stand guilty?

IT MAY BE this will become the issue the House and Senate have to consider most seriously. Not narrow but broad grounds of faithfulness in office may be measured. Various other specific matters have not yet been brought into sharp focus, such as Howard Hughes' $100,000 in Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo's safety deposit box — and its possible distribution — as well as what knowledge Lawrence O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, may have been suspected of having of the Hughes affair when his office in Watergate was broken into.

As of now, though many Americans ought to be heartsick at all the confessed scandal that has come to light, they can hope, and this is the principal ray of light, that such events may be prevented in the future. But if the present mood of dulled unconcern, of stunned apathy, continues, the greatest danger is that the lessons will not be learned and the remedies may be unfound and unapplied. That would be a tragedy against which the present crisis would pale.

Maybe most of us are striving not to sit in judgment until fuller facts are in and appropriate tribunals have acted. That may be reasonable, but the present burden of proven guilt is heavy.

Why Should City Council Delay ?

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
26 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

On June 3, many residents of Quarry Road and Forbes Avenue took time off from whatever else they intended doing that night to attend the San Rafael City Council meeting.

The reason was that the agenda included an item on quarry operation on the former Grandi quarry property. The neighboring residents showed up to protest any renewal of quarrying, which was stopped last fall after long and often bitter negotiations between the city and the property owner.

HOWEVER, NO report on the quarry was given. The new principal owners of the property, David Odom and Roger Hemmerle of Sausalito (Charles M. Grandi, we understand, still retains 10 per cent) had asked that the matter be delayed. To accommodate Odom and Hemmerle, the council delayed discussion of the matter until June 17. So the neighboring residents left without any satisfaction, and without an opportunity to be heard.

Now, we learn from the city manager's office, Odom and Hemmerle have asked that the report not be made at the June 17 meeting, because they will be away and unable to attend.

We trust the council will hear the report anyhow, and make its decision on whether renewal of quarrying is to be permitted.

IT HAPPENS too often that someone with a special interest gets the city council (or the board of supervisors) to delay discussion of a matter. This is a tactic calculated to wear down the opposition. Citizens who have no direct pecuniary interest eventually get tired of taking the time to attend meetings at which they have no opportunity to be heard.

Where an applicant for a city or county permit fails to appear at the time set for hearing, the logical course would be to reject the application on the basis that if he is not interested enough to show up, other people's time should not be wasted.

In the case of the San Rafael quarry, Odom and Hemmerle have no application pending. They asked the city to remove barricades on Quarry Road and Twin Oaks Drive so that they could move trucks into the quarry to resume hauling away rock. The city refused.

THE QUARRY predated the city's zoning ordinance adopted May 2, 1951. That ordinance provided that lawful use of land existing on that date could be continued, but "if any such use ceases, the subsequent use of such land shall be in conformity" with the zoning — in this case, single-family residences.

The city takes the position that, since quarrying was stopped last year, that nonconforming use of the land is no longer legal.

However, the city has not taken that position in public. The council has not publicly discussed the matter. Residents attended the council meeting of June 3 expecting such discussion. They will attend June 17 expecting it again.

We see no reason why the city council cannot go on record whether or not the landowners, Odom and Mennerle, are present.

Office Holders' Pension Grab

(Reprinted from Dublin Tri-Valley News)

Members of the California Legislature have been so extravagent in voting themselves retirement benefits that their pension system will need an extra $500,000 in tax funds to stay afloat next year. Even worse, a study shows that the system would need an immediate $13 million in state funds and higher annual payments of tax money each year in the future to stay on a sound actuarial basis.

This could well be the last straw for taxpayers, who have seen the legislative retirement system they support earn the dubious distinction of being the most generous in any state. The current financial bind stems from a bill passed by the legislators in 1971 which provides lifetime retirement benefits for any assemblyman or senator, regardless of age, who loses an election or retires this year in a district affected by reapportionment. The only qualification is that the legislator had served at least four years and was elected prior to 1970.

The public may have an obligation to provide a stipend in old age for citizens who have served as legislators, but it hardly has an obligation to protect them against the vicissitudes of politics. Every legislator facing an election this year is in a district with boundaries recently redrawn for reapportionment. Hence the prospect of a big new burden on the pension fund.

Any youth of 18 is now eligible to be a member of the legislature. Under the right circumstances he could serve four years at the current $19,600 a year salary and then start drawing a state pension at the ripe old age of 22. Where, just where, will it end?

Congress Moving On Reform — Of Budget, Not Of Campaigns

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This Congress may go down in history as the reform Congress, thanks to President Nixon. But no thanks to Watergate.

This reform is on the budget.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., labels it one of the most important measures ever to come out of any Congress. There are few who would disagree with that assessment, if the reform is made to work as intended.

THE RESULT would be:

—Congress would reclaim its constitutional power over the budget, a power which has withered from disuse in recent generations.

—Congress would say not only where the money goes but also where it comes from and would take the responsibility for deficits.

—Congress would fix priorities for spending twice a year between conflicting demands on the people's taxes.

IN THE PAST, Congress has operated as follows, if you think of it as a family:

Junior gets the OK for a new tennis racket, Jane a new dress, mother a new car and father a golf cart. Junior's brother has been accepted at a swanky, expensive college and Jane's sister has been told she can tour Europe for a year.

At no point does the family check up to find out whether there is money coming in to cover all the spending.

No family could operate like that; bankruptcy would be the inevitable result. But Congress has in the past.

UNDER THE REFORM, it would be quite different:

Congress would still get a proposed budget from the administration. But before Congress authorized a dollar to be spent, it would set its own goals and fix its own priorities for all government departments.

It would do so through two new budget committees in the House and Senate and through a congressional Office of the Budget matching the White House Office of Management and Budget.

Congress then would consider separately the various requests for government spending.

Later, but still before money has been authorized to be spent, Congress would review the spending goals, refine them, change them and shift them, as economic developments and as testimony warranted.

Then it would firm up the priorities. If at that time, spending totaled more than the money coming in, Congress would decide what to do about it —more taxes or more borrowing. The idea is that if Congress had to do all that in one package, it might vote for less spending.

THE REFORM is a direct response by Congress to President Nixon's budget impoundments, which demonstrated the weakness of Congress in a field where its power was supposed to be supreme. The reform bill also includes restrictions on future use by presidents of power to impound money authorized by Congress to be spent.

At one point, it looked as if the budget reform would be lost because of the congressional concentration on Watergate. But the proposal, bandied around in Congress for most of this century, was resurrected.

Legislature Seems Sure To Revise Regents' Setup

By EARL G. WATERS

The clamor for changes in the terms and methods of selecting regents of the University of California appears to have compelled the regents to yield from their adamant position for maintaining the status quo.

A compromise bill for changes has been passed by the Senate and sent to the Assembly, where the greatest pressures for change originated. The measure, authored by Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento, contains provisions which have been deemed acceptable by the regents, although they would prefer no change at all.

It provides for reduction of the present 16-year terms to 12 years, replacement of certain ex-officio members with others, increasing appointive members from the present 16 to 18, and establishment of an advisory committee to recommend new appointments to the governor.

THE REGENTS were established as the governing body of the university by the Constitution in 1879. However, those who oppose a change in the composition often neglect to mention that the current structure dates back only to 1918. It provides that, in addition to 16 governor's appointees, the membership shall include the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the Assembly, superintendent of public instruction, president of the state Board of Agriculture, president of the Mechanic's Institute, president of the university, and president of the university alumni association.

Chief criticism of the present make-up is that the terms are too long and the governor's appointees constitute "an elite body of millionaires."

Most vocal in the criticism has been Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-Campbell, who guided a two-year study on higher education. Vasconcellos advocated dropping the terms to 10 years, which he says is longer than any other public university. Opposition to that stems mainly from the regents themselves, entrenched in 16-year terms which, on occasion, has stretched to a second term. They argue this protects the university from "politics."

AS VASCONCELLOS observed, it is naive to think that politics can ever be removed entirely from the university or any other governmental function. In his mind it is more important to get a broader representation of the public on the regents.

He has advocated greater diversity of backgrounds and younger persons, including student representation. And his advocacy of 10-year terms was a compromise on his part, for he originally would have limited terms to six years.

Vasconcellos is not alone in viewing the terms as too lengthy. Even some regents, as well as members of the state college trustees whose terms are presently eight years, feel that long terms tend to dull the interest of those serving.

Whether the Senate version will be accepted, or amendments to make the Rodda measure closer to the initial Assembly recommendations will be made, remains to be seen, but it appears certain there will be changes forthcoming.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Unsafe To Waste Gasoline In Driving?

When a Marin County municipal judge refers to the director of the California Highway Patrol as "some idiot in Sacramento" then it would seem logical to assume that not all is well, even in the supposedly mundane area of traffic law.

Before proceeding let me briefly outline the events that have prompted me to write this letter to the I-J: I recently received a routine traffic citation for going 65 m.p.h. on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. I subsequently appeared in municipal court on the citation and am now required to attend driver improvement school as the sole requisite for the dismissal of the citation.

During the court session an interesting contradiction occurred to me. To start the court session the judge made about a 10-minute dissertation on the subject of traffic law, it's purpose and relevance. He made several salient points:

(1) That the key intent and purpose of traffic law is the promotion of public safety on the highways.

(2) that this is one area of the law that extends into virtually all of our lives.

(3) that he himself was no different than the rest of us in court when it comes to operating an automobile; that we all can improve our driving habits; that we all are laymen in this regard.

However, when during my own explanation of my citation I tendered that I was indeed driving safely, and that even the California Highway Patrol had publicly stated that they recommended the reinstatement of the 65 m.p.h. speed limit, the judge said that he wished that "some idiot in Sacramento would keep his mouth shut on such matters", that he (the judge) felt that "no one is really capable of controlling an automobile at 65 m.p.h. and that statistics would bear him out as correct.

I would submit to you that: the primary intent of the legislation reducing the state speed limit to 55 m.p.h. was not to improve public safety, but was intended to reduce vehicle fuel consumption in the face of the now famous energy crisis . . .

The dilemma I would like explained is quite simple. If I have been cited for operating my vehicle unsafely, then how is it that such safety standards can change so substantially, without being presented to the public with safety the point in mind! . . .

On the other hand, if I have been cited for excess fuel consumption (which would be the logical extension of violating the intent of the legislation reducing the speed limit) then why does the judicial system see attending driver improvement school as proper remedial action?

Marin Fortunate To Have Betty Presley

Heartiest congratulations are due Betty Presley, director of health and human services, who has announced her retirement as of July 1. Her dedicated service of 23 years has seen many accomplishments, including the building of one of the most outstanding welfare (public social service) departments in the country, where professional staff have counseled many clients to rebuild their lives. Betty's skills as an administrator resulted in her appointment as director of health and human services, where she has pinpointed a number of problems and made corrective suggestions to the board of supervisors.

Marin has been fortunate to have such an outstanding public servant whose concern for people has enriched the lives of all who know her.

Felson Accused Of Twisting Facts

On June 3, the Independent-Journal published an article entitled "Intertie Pipeline Proposal Halted".

Water Board President Jack R. Felson was quoted as saying in reference to the intertie as follows: ". . . it is a good thing we didn't go ahead and build it. If we had, we would find ourselves holding the bag now. At this point we can make other kinds of decisions and look for other means of supply".

I fear that Mr. Felson is again bending the facts to fit his own opinions. May I remind your readers that the voters approved the intertie and its bond issue in 1970.

The facts are that had Mr. Felson voted to complete the intertie as approved by the voters of Marin County we would now have:

1. An intertie completed and operating today.

2. An assured source of 4,000 acre feet of water available to meet the present residents' needs.

3. This 4,000 acre feet supply would have been assured by an enforceable contract.

Mr. Felson, in ignoring the wishes of the voters by voting against the intertie, is now using the shortage of water, which he created, to justify a water hook-up moratorium that the courts have declared illegal. . .

What To Do About Citizen Frustrations?

In your June 6 editorial you traced some of the disintegration of public trust in elected officials from Spiro Agnew to the officials of the Golden Gate Bridge District. In the former case something has been done about it; in the latter. . .?

You have, as you very often do in your comments, given us the "top lines." But, what about the "bottom line?"

How do we as citizens go about preventing the continued expansion of bureaucracy? How do we go about making citizen desires known — and heard? How do we get over the frustrations of paying more and more and getting less and less? How do we go about the development of bureaucracy which is responsive to people needs?

At least you continue to make us think.

Love Overcomes The Lack Of Arms, Legs

SHERMAN, Tex. (UPI) — Cindy Ann Inman and James Lewis Rice met in high school five years ago and fell in love. They were married on June 7 in a double-ring church ceremony.

Theirs is not a typical love story. They firmly believe they are typical 20-year-old newlyweds. But they are not.

Cindy, whose curly blonde hair falls below her shoulders, wears her wedding band on a chain that hangs around her neck. She was born in 1953 without arms or legs.

"We're living with my parents until our apartment's ready," Cindy said yesterday. "It was a garage and we're turning it into an apartment. It will be ready soon now."

The apartment will look like all other apartments, except it will be a bit more roomy than most and will have no steps.

"We are doing just fine," her husband said. "We don't envision any problems at all adjusting to married life."

James pushed his wife's wheelchair down the church aisle after they were married. But Cindy has learned to help herself — she moves around by a scooting method she has developed over the years.

James works as an apprentice in the electrical contracting business owned by Cindy's father. And she has turned her hobby of collecting glass into a small curio shop next door.

Cindy said if any housekeeping problems arise, she will deal with them at the time.

"I don't see any reason to worry about them in advance," she said.

Cindy has worked every day to lead as normal life as possible. She has been featured in publicity in the Sherman Easter Seal Center for Crippled Children and once represented the East Seal Society in New York.

Mrs. Floyd Inman, Cindy's mother, said much of her daughter's healthy outlook on life was due to her being treated like a normal child, including spankings when needed.

Cindy and James graduated from Sherman High School in 1972 and since she has been attending Grayson County College and expects to finish next year.

"My antique shop started about five years ago," Cindy said. "It was more or less a hobby, and it still is. We started going to flea markets and I got to collecting so much of the little glassware that we ran out of a place to store it. We put it in the attic for a time, but the ceiling began to sag.

"So we decided I ought to open up the little store and that's what we did." Cindy's aunt helps with the shop.

Cindy James said they don't want or need any sympathy, and Cindy wasn't sure they wanted a news story.

"Before I discuss anything, I'd like to talk to my husband," she said. "He's just an ordinary guy and we discuss everything before we do anything. We're not used to the limelight."

Buzhardt Suffers Coronary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt suffered a "mild coronary" early today and was rushed to a suburban hospital where he was listed in serious condition.

A White House spokesman said Buzhardt, who is one of President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyers, was in the coronary care unit of Fairfax Hospital in Falls Church, Va., located 17 miles from Washington.

The spokesman said the White House was concerned and that Nixon, who is in Egypt, had been informed.

Peggy Pond, a hospital spokesman, said Buzhardt was suffering from "severe chest pains" and was listed in serious condition. She said Buzhardt was admitted to the hospital at 12:23 a.m. EDT.

It was understood that Buzhardt had worked almost all night Tuesday in preparation for a court appearance yesterday in the dispute involving White House documents and former Nixon aide, John D. Ehrlichman.

One source said that Buzhardt had been maintaining a "horrendous schedule" in recent weeks while working on Watergate related matters.

Both the White House and the hospital said a firm prognosis of Buzhardt's ailment had been made.

Slayer Is Given Prison Sentence

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Andrew D. Lyons, 34, convicted of voluntary manslaughter in which the victim's heart was transplanted, was sentenced yesterday to one to 15 years in prison.

Lyons' attorney, John Cruikshank Jr., said he would appeal, insisting the judge was wrong to rule the heart transplant operation did not cause the death of Samuel M. Allen Jr., 29, who had been shot in the head by Lyons.

The attorney said the judge "can't legislate what death is." He maintained that Allen was alive until his heart was removed two days after the shooting for a transplant at Stanford Medical Center.

Venezuelan Quake Leaves Three Dead

CARACAS (UPI) — Dozens of old houses and part of a village hospital collapsed in an earthquake that left at least three persons dead and several injured in the eastern provinces of Venezuela, official sources said.

Sources said that most residents of Carupano village — some 250 miles from Caracas, on the Caribbean coast — ran to the streets in terror when the tremor hit yesterday. Authorities feared the entire hospital would collapse and evacuated all the patients.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Reform Program Torn To Shreds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's ambitious political reform program lay in tatters today in the legislature.

Virtually every major piece of his eight-part package had been defeated or sent to legislative limbo. Only two measures remain active.

Two key bills—one to outlaw campaign contributions by labor and business and another to forbid politicking by public employes during work hours—were killed yesterday by the Assembly Elections and Reapportionment Committee.

Reagan announced his proposal April 19 and offered it as what many legislators viewed as an alternative to Prop. 9, the "political reform" initiative on the June 4 ballot. The initiative was overwhelmingly approved.

The committee on a 3-0 vote, with at least seven needed for passage, scuttled Reagan's bill (AB4262) to make illegal campaign contributions given by anyone except individuals.

Carried by Assemblyman Bob McLennan, R-Downey, the legislation proposed eliminating political contributions by corporations and businesses and by such organizations as labor unions and public employe associations.

The Committee defeated 6-0, one short of passage, the governor's bill (AB4301) by Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, to prohibit nonelected state and local government employes from participating in political activities during duty hours.

The committee, did, however, endorse 10-0 another Reagan-sponsored bill (AB4258) by Assemblyman Mike Antonovich, R-Glendale, to make it against the law for a court judge to administer political funds for other candidates.

The committee also approved 9-0 and sent to the Ways and Means Committee another Reagan-supported bill (AB4291) by Assemblyman Newton Russell, R-Tujunga, that would require reading experts to advise on the reading ease of ballot pamphlets sent to the voters.

Reagan, who will retire in January and is a leading GOP Republican presidential contender, proposed his reforms as "necessary to reestablish and maintain the public's confidence in government."

His cornerstone bill to make the office of secretary of state nonpartisan died in a Senate committee. His bill to reduce the electioneering period by moving the primary election from June to September also was defeated earlier.

Another of Reagan's bills to more closely regulate lobbyists is pending and is not expected to be acted upon while his legislation to create a fair campaign practices commission was abandoned since passage of Prop. 9.

OPEN SPACE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill restructuring California's $16 million-a-year program of offering tax breaks to encourage preservation of "open space" lands has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The measure (AB2853) by Assemblyman John Dunlap, D-Napa, cleared the Ways and Means Committee yesterday on a 19-0 vote.

It was designed to place the emphasis on maintaining as open space prime agricultural land near urban areas rather than acreage located away from cities.

NO-FAULT BILLS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Two rival no-fault automobile insurance bills have been defeated by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Two other bills on the highly controversial topic awaited action by the committee, a major hurdle for no-fault proposals in the past.

SPENDING PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's plan to place new spending restrictions on the legislature in line with his defeated tax limitation initiative has been defeated in a Senate committee.

The proposed constitutional amendment by Sen. John Stull, R-Leucadia, was rejected on a 1-5 vote yesterday by the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The proposal was aimed at barring legislators from passing an unbalanced budget. If such a budget reached the governor's desk, the legislature would be required to pass a separate bill to increase taxes.

FOSTER FUNDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill approved by an Assembly committee yesterday would provide special survivor's retirement benefits for the widow of Oakland School Superintendent Marcus Foster, who was slain allegedly by Symbionese Liberation Army members.

The bill by Assemblyman John Miller, D-Oakland, was sent to the Assembly floor on a minimum 11-6 vote by the Ways and Means Committee.

It appropriates $173,000 to finance retirement benefits for Mrs. Foster that the Foster family would have collected if the superintendent had not been murdered. Under current law, she would have been eligible for only a $2,000 death benefit.

PATROL PAY

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill designed to provide a $12 million-a-year increase in the salaries of highway patrolmen has won unanimous approved from the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The legislation would take control of patrolmen's salaries out of the hands of the state Personnel Boards and make their wages the average of those paid to the Los Angeles, San Diego, Oakland and San Francisco police departments and the Los Angeles sheriff's department.

POT PENALTY

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill making possession and use of marijuana a simple "infraction" rather than a possible felony offense has failed in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Under the bill, an infraction would have carried a maximum penalty of a $100 fine for possession of less than three ounces. The same penalty would have applied for using or giving away small amounts of marijuana.

ARREST RECORD

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill barring private and public employers from requiring that a record of arrests be listed on an initial job application form was signed yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill (AB2644) by Assemblyman Leroy F. Green, D-Sacramento, allows questions regarding convictions. It provides fines up to $500 for violations.

The measure does not apply to applicants for peace officer positions. It becomes effective Jan. 1, 1975.

DELEGATES

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill making a Republican candidate nominated at a special primary election a delegate to the Republican State Convention was signed yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure (AB2692) was authored by Assemblyman Robert G. Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach. Present law provides that candidates nominated at the direct primary are delegates. The change becomes effective next Jan. 1.

SACRAMENTO SUMMARY

Egyptians Saved By Navy Team

NORFOLK , Va. (UPI) — A rescue team of 25 American sailors helped extinguish a fire and saved the lives of at least three crewmen aboard an Egyptian cargo ship shortly before President Nixon's arrival in the Middle East port of Alexandria, the Navy reported today.

A spokesman for the Navy Amphibious Force here said the rescue was conducted yesterday by crewmen from the USS Inchon, which had anchored at Alexandria following mine clearing operations in the Suez Canal. It was the first U.S. Navy ship to visit Alexandria since 1962.

The spokesman said the fire aboard the Egyptian cargo ship Al Mokatten started when a fuel leak in its engine room exploded, triggering a blaze that spread to an adjoining cargo hold. Although the hold was empty, he said, the fire apparently was fed there by a ruptured fuel tank.

At the request of the commander of the Egyptian naval base, U.S. sailors — led by CWO Lapel Miller of Philadelphia, Miss. — boarded the Al Mokatten and subdued the fire with a portable pump and flame-smothering foam.

Civilians crowded a pier near the Al Mokatten and cheered the rescue by the American sailors, the Navy said.

The U.S. Navy spokesman said hospital corpsman Harold R. McHenry of Dover, Del., saved one crewman by administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and carrying him from the burning cargo hold. Two other crewmen were revived with oxygen after they were overcome by smoke.

He said the engine room fire was extinquished within two hours, but the cargo hold fire was not brought under control until five hours later.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

First Death Sentence Since Ruling

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — Donald Lee Bernard, 36, yesterday became the first defendant to be sentenced to death since the death penalty was reinstated in California.

In another trial in Santa Monica, a jury began deliberations yesterday to determine whether Ronald Sims will be the second.

Superior Court Judge Edward P. Fogg sentenced Bernard to death for first degree murder in the killings of Loretta J. Dickinson, 16, and Robert G. Nyberg, 19.

The bodies of the two teenagers were found under a bridge over the Mojave River Jan. 12. They had been beaten and both were shot in the head.

Bernard, identified as from Kentucky, was convicted of deliberate and premeditated murder while committing robbery, one of the offenses specified in the new death penalty law, written to meet the objections of the U.S. Supreme Court decision that halted executions as unconstitutional.

In Santa Monica, the same jury that convicted Sims, 23, of first degree murder in the death of a maintenance man during a restaurant holdup began deliberations to determine whether the killing met the "willful, premeditated and deliberate" conditions that call for the death penalty.

Witnesses said Sims, who had been fired from the restaurant and knew the victim, blasted him in the back with a shotgun at point blank range during a $10 holdup.

Answers Critics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying his Supreme Court colleagues were concerned over suggestions that they laze through their annual four-month vacation, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger says the court stands ready at any time to consider important issues, such as Watergate matters.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Failure Of Kidneys Can Come For Wide Variety Of Reasons

The kidneys may fail to function (renal insufficiency) for a variety of reasons. This may take place slowly in an older person with hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure, or a chronic kidney infection. Or, it might occur rapidly as a result of poisoning, hemorrhage, a severe burn, or renal infection. These conditions may considerably reduce the urinary output and when it is nil for six to eight days, the "poisons" usually eliminated by the kidneys accumulate in the blood (uremia).

Victims of renal insufficiency have no way to excrete the chemical byproducts of digestion. When uremia develops, the individual feels weak and becomes mentally dull. Nausea, vomiting, and twitching of the muscles frequently occur. Difficulty in expelling the respiratory secretions leads to noisy breathing.

WHEN THE uremia continues, the blood pressure goes up, anemia develops, and there is a tendency to bleed internally.

The medical treatment of uremia entails the regulation of the intake of fluids, foods, and chemicals such as salt, potassium, and alkalis. This approach is not as effective as renal dialysis, in which the artifical kidney duplicates the work of a normal kidney by filtering the toxic substances from the blood. Dialysis, however, is time consuming, expensive, and not always practical.

They are otherwise healthy, emotionally mature adults under the age of 45 who are unable to work because of the uremia. Their kidneys are shot because of inherited defects, serious infections, or kidney stones. These people can be kept alive and healthy via 8- to 10- hour dialysis twice a week with the understanding that a transplant will be done when a doner kidney becomes available.

Uremia is more common in the elderly who have hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure, heart trouble, or a chronic kidney infection. In most instances, it is a terminal condition in people of this age group and the outlook with or without the artificial kidney is not good. For some, dialysis prolongs a productive life. But the procedure is not recommended when it only prolongs dying.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

MENOPAUSE

A reader writes: Can the change of life happen a second time? I seem to have the same symptoms I had 15 years ago. P.S. Just celebrated by 64th birthday.

REPLY

No. I assume you refer to the hot flashes which so many persons associate with the menopause. This is a common symptom of the change of life, but it occurs in women of all ages and in men, too. In this respect, it is not always a sign of the menopause.

FOOD PRESERVATIES

R. E. writes: Are canned foods adulterated by the preservatives used?

REPLY

Not if the Food and Drug Administration has anything to say about it. Preservatives are added to prevent spoilage and prolong the life of the food. In my opinion, the alternative to not using preservatives is much more harmful.

Lawmaker Is Robbery Victim

BOSTON (UPI) — A Massachusetts state representative was robbed at gunpoint Tuesday night in the State House parking lot.

Rep. Richard E. Landry, D-Waltham, said he was approached by the man at about 10 p.m. as he tried to enter his car after work. The man pointed a gun at Landry and demanded his money, the representative said.

About $40 was taken, but police did not find any suspects. Landry said his car was stolen from the capitol parking lot two weeks ago.

Man Goes Wild On Mushrooms

HOUSTON (UPI) — A commercial painter, dazed after eating mushrooms he found growing beside a road, took off his clothes and ran through a residential neighborhood, threw $1,200 into a bayou and slugged a pursuing policeman with a board, police said yesterday.

Five officers subdued the 23-year-old man who was charged with aggravated assault, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct.

The man told officers he ate the mushrooms because he thought they might be hallucinogenic. He said he had drawn the money out of a bank and was on his way to California.

The man's family told police he had been under psychiatric treatment more than a year ago.

Pontiff Approves Eucharistic Congress

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pope Paul VI has approved the celebration of the 41st Eucharistic Congress here in 1976, John Cardinal Krol, archbishop of Philadelphia said yesterday.

Cardinal Krol made the announcement after receipt of a letter conveying the Pope's approval from James Cardinal Knox of Australia, president of the permanent committee on the eucharistic congress.

Unperturbed 'Swan Lake'

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union's Bolshoi ballet company danced Swan Lake unperturbed last night despite repeated attempts by pro-Jewish demonstrators to disrupt the performance at the Coliseum theater.

Demonstrators and counter-demonstrators chanted and waved banners outside demanding liberation of Jewish prisoners in the Soviet Union and for and against emigration to Israel.

Police Officer Wins Acquittal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Patrolman Thomas Shea, the only New York City policeman ever tried for murder in the line of duty, was acquitted yesterday. He was tried on charges he shot to death a 10-year-old black boy a year ago.

Shea wept when the verdict was read.

He had testified when he spotted the boy, Clifford Glover, and the child's stepfather, Add Armstead, April 28, 1973, he thought they matched the descriptions of two armed robbers.

He said the boy and Armstead fled when he tried to question them and as he pursued them through a vacant lot, it appeared to him the boy wheeled on him with a gun.

A Dismal Day At Candlestick

Candlestick Park was no place to be yesterday. Unless you were a Chicago Cubs fan. When the game started the weather was more like winter than summer, overcast and dismal. When the game ended the sun was shining brightly but the mighty Giants had lost. And what a loss! It was a 10-1 yawner.

Yes, it was a lonely place yesterday. There were only 2,541 fans scattered around the stadium. The only cheering came from the little knot of Cubs boosters who flew west for their team's road trip.

The Giants' pitching is performing just as expected. At the start of the season San Francisco was getting fine pitching and staying near the .500 mark. Now that the pitchers have found their true level the gap between the Giants and Dodgers is getting out of sight, out of mind.

Need for pitching is becoming a desperate problem for the Giants. They were so hurting for left-handed relief help they purchased 35-year-old Steve Barber from their Phoenix farm club and sold Jim Willoughby to Phoenix. They won't miss Willoughby, but it's very doubtful Barber will be of that much help.

Barber was known for his fast ball in his glory years with the Baltimore Orioles. He pitched a couple of innings yesterday and threw sinkers and screwballs. The fast ball is no more. He gave up two hits and a run in his first appearance as a Giant so his first S.F. earned run average is 4.50. It's better than the 6.54 ERA he dragged in from Phoenix.

Jerry Donovan, assistant to Giants president Horace Stoneham and the man who does much of the team's trading and bargaining, didn't get to see Barber pitch yesterday. He was busy on the telephone. He didn't say who he was talking to but you can bet it was one of the National League teams which are laying in ambush, drooling over the likes of young players such as Dave Kingman, Gary Matthews, Steve Ontiveros and Gary Thomasson. Opposing teams even have hopes of nabbing a disturbed Bobby Bonds who is having an open game of silence with manager Charlie Fox.

The Giants are hoping to make a deal before the Saturday trading deadline but if one comes you can bet it won't bring in a front-liner. Going on the Giants' track record, other teams know that if they wait long enough they can get something for nothing.

The trade which sent Willie McCovey to San Diego for left-hander Mike Caldwell was the only trade which has turned out in the Giants' favor in some time. Please don't mention anything about Gaylord Perry of Cleveland winning his 11th straight game yesterday. I'm still trying to find out what Sam McDowell is doing these days.

The biggest surprise to me about the Giants has nothing to do with their pitching. I knew that was bad before the season started, so did anyone else who followed the team. The big surprise is the base running. I had thought it would be an exciting ball club, running for that extra base at all times.

With the exception of Bonds, all that speed on the team is being wasted. The Giants have stolen 27 bases compared to their opposition's 34. But here's the really bad part: the Giants have been caught stealing 21 times to only 14 for the other guys. Bonds has been the only effective thief, with 15 steals in 18 attempts. Garry Maddox, on the other hand, has been successful only twice in eight attempts.

The Giants have their share of problems, on and off the field. And solutions do not appear to be in the immediate future.

Pitching Problems For Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rick Reuschel, the big Chicago Cubs righthander, says he'd rather be lucky—if he can't be good.

Yesterday at Candlestick Park, while pitching against the San Francisco Giants, Reuschel was less than satisfied with his performance, although he went the distance for a 10-1 victory.

"To be honest, I didn't pitch well at all," said the 6-3, 220-pound native of Quincy, Ill. "sure, it's nice to win, but the way I was pitching I needed all the help I could get. If the fellows behind me don't make two early double plays I proba-

Red Sox Show Why They're Hot

A's Swept As Drago Stands Out

BOSTON (UPI) — The Red Sox should have saved this series for the American League playoffs.

Boston, the hottest team in the majors, wrapped up a three-game sweep of the World Champion Oakland A's last night with a bristling 5-3 victory that sent them on the road leading the American League East by three games.

The Red Sox, 8-3 in June and looking more each game like a pennant winner, quite possibly could meet Oakland again in the league playoffs. If so, Boston will hope for the same good luck against the A's hitting star Reggie Jackson that they had in the past series.

Jackson was 1-for-10 in the three games, including 0-2 last night against Dick Drago.

Drago, in fact, held the heart of Oakland's lineup to one hit in 12 at-bats as he yielded just five hits and struck out eight in a route-going performance that moved him to 5-1 on the season and gave Boston its fourth straight win.

"I had a lot more success tonight against Jackson, (Joe) Rudi and (Sal) Bando than I ever have had in one night," said Drago. "But when you throw the ball where you want to and have good stuff, you can get them out."

Oakland pitchers Dave Hamilton and Darold Knowles couldn't throw the ball in the right spot to Mario Guerrero. The Boston shortstop singled home a run in the third inning off Hamilton and outguessed Knowles for a two-run single with the bases full in the eighth that won the game.

"Knowles got two quick strikes on me then he threw three straight inside pitches," said the .236 hitter who had just 10 runs batted in heading into the game. "I waited for the fastball over the plate all the way because I knew he didn't want to walk in a run."

The hit marked the first time Boston had taken the lead in the game. Oakland had taken a 1-0 edge on Angel Mangual's second inning homer, but Boston tied the score in the fourth on Guerrero's single behind a Rick Burleson double.

Oakland went ahead 3-1 in the sixth on a two-run homer by Deron Johnson, the only Oakland power hitter to touch Drago. Boston retaliated with a pair in the bottom of the sixth on a two-run single by Carl Yastrzemski after Juan Beniquez had been hit by a pitch and had moved to third on Carlton Fisk's double.

YOU'RE OUT — Diving Red Sox baserunner Carlton Fisk was out at second base last night in Boston as he tried to get back to the bag during the fourth inning. Oakland second baseman Dick Green made the tag after taking a throw from third baseman Sal Bando. Umpire Nick Bremigan crouched to get a closer look at the play. (UPI Telephoto)

AFTER KANSAS CITY, WASHINGTON STOCKED

NHL Meeting Winds Up Today

MONTREAL (UPI) — The National Hockey League today winds up its annual four-day meeting after outfitting the new Kansas City and Washington teams with players for next season and awarding new franchises for 1976 to Denver and Seattle.

The main item on today's agenda is the reverse draft, which allows American Hockey League teams to claim unprotected NHL players. Each NHL club can protect 37 skaters, including four goalies, and no team can lose more than two players.

Those drafted in the first round will go for $15,000 and those chosen in the second phase will cost $7,500.

At yesterday's session, the NHL granted new franchises to Denver, represented by Ivan Mullenix and to Seattle, represented by Vince Abbey. However, the league's board of governors turned down a franchise application from San Diego.

Mullenix and Abbey were both associated with Western Hockey League teams in their cities. NHL president Clarence Campbell said with the awarding of the new franchises, the WHL would cease operations.

Some of the WHL teams may play in the central Hockey League for the 1974-75 season, he said, but this has not yet been decided.

Campbell declined to disclose how much the Denver and Seattle clubs will pay to join the NHL. Washington and Kansas City each put up $6 million for their teams, which begin playing this fall.

While the Scouts and Capitols were each acquiring 24 players at yesterday's expansion draft, the Boston Bruins formally completed the long rumored trade of center Derek Sanderson to the New York Rangers in exchange for forward Walt McKechnie.

Goalies took top priority in the expansion draft, which allowed the two new teams to stock their rosters with players from the NHL clubs' unprotected lists.

Each of the existing 16 teams was allowed to protect 15 forwards and defensemen and two goalies and, upon losing a player, was allowed to add another to the protected roster.

Kansas City, who had first choice, selected Montreal Canadiens' goalie Michel Plasse, who last year shared goaltending duties with Wayne Thomas and Bunny Larocque.

Washington's first nod went to Ron Low, a minor league goalie from Toronto, who played with the Maple Leafs two years ago.

In the second goaltending round, the Scouts took the Rangers' Pete McDuffe and the Capitols opted for Michel Belhumeur of the Philadelphia Flyers.

Other players chosen early in the proceedings were Philadelphia forward Simon Nolet, Atlanta Flames forward Bruce Deadmarsh and Detroit Red Wings defenseman Brent Hughes, all chosen by Kansas City.

Washington selected Chicago Black Hawk forward Dave Kryskow, Pittsburgh Penguin defenseman Yvon Labre and California Golden Seal forward Peter Laframboise as their first three playing choices.

Other Seals selected were defensemen Gary Croteau and Gary Coalter by Kansas City. Meanwhile, the Seals signed defensemen Len Frig and Mike Christie, both obtained in the trade which sent Ivan Boldirev to the Chicago Black Hawks.

Martin Tabbed As West Coach

Combined AP & UPI

Martin, whose appointment was announced yesterday, has taken his Air Force teams to three bowls and was the head coach of the West team in 1967.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State University football coach Woody Hayes has made "satisfactory" progress during the first week of his hospitalization following a heart attack, his doctors announced today.

Basketball

OAKLAND — Golden State Warriors' owner Franklin Mieuli says that he will sign All-America forward Keith Wilkes of UCLA, the National Basketball Association team's top draft pick.

Wilkes' agent, Sam Gilbert, had complained last week that the Warriors were not doing serious negotiating, but Mieuli said flatly yesterday that "Wilkes will be in a Warrior uniform this year."

CHICAGO — Chicago Bulls' top draft choice Clifton Pondexter, a 19-year-old freshman forward at Long Beach State, yesterday signed a multi-year contract.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians had their day in court but still feel their 9-0 forfeit to the Texas Rangers was unfair.

Ted Bonda, Indians executive vice president, and Phil Seghi, general manager, went to New York yesterday to make a protest to American League President Lee MacPhail. He turned them down.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — In a move that can only be judged as startling, Cedric Tallis yesterday lost his job as general manager of the Kansas City Royals. The man who built the six-year expansion team into a legitimate title threat in the American League was replaced by Joe Burke in a brief announcement Tuesday night.

WASHINGTON — Hank Aaron, baseball's premier home run hitter, today becomes the first sports figure to appear on the podium in the U.S. House of Representatives from which presidents and prime ministers, national heroes and crowned rulers have spoken.

The Atlanta Braves star, guest of honor at Flag Day ceremonies in the House, will speak from the same historic spot where such figures as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Queen Elizabeth, Charles DeGaulle and emperor Haile Selassie addressed Congress.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Pipeline Those Putts

By LEE TREVINO

To check your putting stroke, take two irons and the easiest six-foot putt you can find. You can't make a straight putt with a crooked stroke.

Lay the two clubs parallel and just a mite farther apart than the length of your putter blade. They'll form a tunnel toward the hole.

The lower you keep the putter on the backswing, the better. Place a coin three or four inches behind the ball and try to hit it as you come back. You'll move into the ball better without jabbing it.

It really ain't fair, but a six-foot putt counts the same on your card as a 190-yard shot across a canyon. Miss enough of 'em and you'll start looking for a deep canyon.

If it appears that you're bringing the putter up too quick, you're getting a little wristy. This makes you pull putts off line.

The putting stroke isn't like a golf swing. If the clubhead goes back 10 inches, the grip (and your hands) should go back about five. This helps keep the wrists out of the stroke and sets up a firm connection.

Skipper Bavier Is Anxious For Shot At America's Cup Champion

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Bob Bavier is itching with anticipation for the first deep-sea run against two-time winner Intrepid when preliminary trials for the 1974 America's Cup series start June 24.

Bavier and his crew spent yesterday sorting and storing equipment aboard Courageous, an aluminum-hulled, 12-meter yacht installed as early favorite to defend the cup against Australia or France. Her first practice run off Newport was set for Friday.

"We're very anxious to hook up with Intrepid because she is a known good boat," said Bavier of Darien, Conn. "We're very anxious to see how we go against her. The preliminary trials are very important for getting a crew all hooked up and finding out your strengths and weaknesses."

Within shouting distance on the waterfront, the Intrepid team was hard at work scraping and sanding down the hull to bare wood, with resealing and a new coat of paint planned by the weekend. Wet paint below her waterline blistered off during the cross-country trip by truck from San Diego.

"It will be a little tight, but I think we can have everything pretty well ready by Monday. Practice will start late Monday or Tuesday," said Intrepid skipper Gerry Driscoll.

With more than 1,000 miles logged prior to shipment, the skipper is not worried about any practice time lost to the repainting.

"We think we have a pretty good handle on the boat but you never know until you start racing," Driscoll said. "Once we start racing, we'll find out whether we've done our homework properly. I feel there will be a few surprises and a few disappointments."

Intrepid, the 1967 and 1970 Cup winner rebuilt for greater speed, and Courageous were the first contenders to arrive.

bly would have been run out of there."

The Giants filled the bases with one out in the first and then Steve Ontiveros hit a bullet that almost knocked down shortstop Don Kessinger, but he held the ball and then doubled up the runner at second.

Another double play in the fourth also bailed out Reuschel and then he settled down dispatched the Giants without much trouble, although they piled up 10 hits off him.

Jose Cardenal, Bill Madlock and Dave Rosello, with two RBIs each, paced a 16-hit Chicago attack that sent the Giants reeling to their fourth straight defeat.

"We can't be any worse off than we are right now," moaned Giants' Manager Charlie Fox. "The pitching just isn't there and without pitching you can't go on playing catchup baseball every day and hope to come out on top. Not often anyway."

Tom Bradley, failing once again, was racked for eight hits and five runs in three-plus innings and slipped to 6-6.

While rumors persist the Giants are about to pull off a deal before Saturday's trading deadline, Fox said he has run out of ideas for a swap of players.

"Let's face it," said Fox, "we are over a barrel and everyone is trying to rape us. The only pitchers being offered around are second-liners who probably can't help us. we'll just have to ride things out and hope for the best. I'm not going to give up a Dave Kingman or a Gary Matthews for somebody's humpty pitcher. What good is a .500 pitcher to us. We need a solid starter and no one wants to give up that kind of a pitcher."

Tight Security On Hand For World Cup Opening

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Soccer's World Cup, labeled by some the greatest show in professional sport, kicked off today amid massive security and a lot of questions.

West German police, fearful of terrorist attacks of the kind that brought tragedy to the Munich Olympics in 1972, assigned 10,000 men to security and crowd control for the 38-match tournament. Of these 10,000, some 1,200 will be watching the two final matches in Munich July 6 and 7, when U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is expected as guest of honor at the spectacle watched throughout the world by satellite telecast.

The questions over the tournament, apart from security, cover matters of tactics, soccer style and even the future shape of the competition itself.

The 16 teams in the finals, besides West Germany and Brazil — automatic qualifiers as host country and reigning champions — are survivors of regional competitions that started in 1972. They are Chile, East Germany, Australia, Scotland, Yugoslavia, Zaire, Holland, Sweden, Uruguay, Bulgaria, Argentina, Haiti, Italy and Poland.

This year's competition is played under a league system which eliminates the sudden death knockout-rounds employed in most previous World Cups.

Froehling, Cox Help Tip Gaters

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Frank Froehling and Mark Cox led the Florida Flamingos to a 28-24 victory over the Golden Gaters last night in World Team Tennis at the Miami Beach Convention Hall.

Froehling beat Roy Emerson in men's singles, 6-4. Cox teamed with Laurie Fleming to defeat Frew McMillan and Denise Triolo in mixed doubles. Then Froehling and Cox stopped Emerson and McMillan, 7-6, in men's doubles.

The Gaters won the women's singles and women's doubles competition. Leslie Hunt defeated Florida's Betty Ann Grubb, 7-5, and Miss Hunt and Illana Kloss topped Grubb and Fleming, 6-4, in women's doubles.

U.S. Open Jinx Plagues Veteran Golf Star Snead

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. Open jinx has slapped old Sam Snead down again — and in a tragic fashion.

The 62-year-old Virginian, one of the game's immortals, turned up with a mysterious fractured rib on the eve of the 74th Open, starting today at the Winged Foot Club and had to withdraw.

"I don't know how it happened," Snead, oldest man ever to qualify for the event, said after undergoing tests at the United Hospital in nearby White Plains.

"My left side started bothering me at the Kemper Open in Charlotte a couple of weeks ago. Then the pain became worse in practice here but I didn't think about it until my final practice round."

Snead played nine holes in one-over-par and then went to the locker room in pain. Friends took him to the hospital.

"I was afraid at first it might be a heart attack," he said. "It hurt like hell. I couldn't even get my sweater off."

"The same thing happened about 10 years ago in California," he said, "only it was on the right side.

Snead had been playing so well in practice that Bill Campbell, former U.S. Walker Cup captain and a close friend from Huntington, West Va., said he thought Sam had the best chance to win here.

"I've never played better before an Open," said Snead, who was preparing for his 31st Open test. "I had practice rounds of 70, 71 and 70."

Snead has won 154 tournaments, including three Masters, three American Professional Golfers Association titles and the British Open, but the U.S. Open always escaped him. He came within inches on several occasions and was runner-up five times.

Carlton Is Regaining Top Form

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Quietly, almost without notice, Steve Carlton is regaining the form that made him the best pitcher in baseball two years ago.

The 29-year-old lefthander of the Philadelphia Phillies won 27 games, including 15 in a row, in 1972 and was named the National League's Cy Young award winner — a feat made even more remarkable by the fact that the Phillies finished last in the East Division.

Almost as startling, however, was Carlton's incredible turnabout last season when he fell to a 13-20 record as the Phillies once again finished last.

This season, however, Carlton seems to have found himself again. Last night he pitched his eighth straight complete game as he blanked the Houston Astros on five hits, 3-0.

Unlike two years ago when he was the center of attention among baseball writers, Carlton's steadiness has been overlooked because of the sensational start of Cleveland's Gaylord Perry, who has recorded 11 consecutive victories since opening day.

Was it as good as any game he pitched two years ago?

"I pitched better (then) on occasion," he said. "The club played superb defense behind me in '72. What more can you ask of a club? They are superb again this year, although they may be able to score a few more runs."

Indeed, the Phillies are not the same kind of club that finished last the past three seasons. They are, in fact, a first place club at the moment. The victory over Houston enabled the Phils to hold onto first place in the NL East by one game over St. Louis.

A two-run double by Willie Montanez in the sixth inning gave Carlton all the runs he needed as the Phillies handed Don Wilson his fourth loss in seven decisions.

In other NL games, St. Louis topped Los Angeles 6-3, San Diego beat Pittsburgh 5-2, Cincinnati edged Montreal 3-1, Atlanta nipped New York 1-0 and Chicago walloped San Francisco 10-1.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 3

Joe Torre drove in three runs, including a pair with a third-inning homer, to spark the Cardinals to their third straight win over the Dodgers.

Padres 5, Pirates 2

Johnny Grubb hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning to cap a four-run rally which enabled the Padres to defeat the Pirates.

Reds 3, Expos 1

Clay Kirby and Clay Carroll combined on an eight-hitter to lead the Reds over the Expos.

Braves 1, Mets 0

Carl Morton tossed a six-hitter and Dave Johnson singled home the game's only run with two out in the eighth, enabling the Braves to beat the Mets.

Pot Conviction Upheld Against Rams' Rentzel

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a lower court marijuana conviction against Los Angeles Rams wide receiver Lance Rentzel.

Rentzel, 30, had pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $2,000 but he later appealed on grounds that authorities used an improper search warrant when they confiscated the marijuana.

The former University of Oklahoma star was suspended for one year last July 20 by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle following the guilty plea. Rozelle called Rentzel's conduct detrimental to professional football.

But Rozelle reinstated Rentzel May 17 and the standout receiver is expected to rejoin the Rams this season.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Another Put-On By Indians' G. Perry?

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The funny thing about Gaylord Perry is that nobody knows whether he's telling the truth or giving the baseball world a gigantic put-on.

It was that way when Perry was denying (with a wink, of course) that he was throwing the outlawed spitball and it's that way now when he has won 11 straight games for the Cleveland Indians and is nearing the American League record of 16 in a row shared by four pitchers.

Perry won his 11th straight game last night when the Indians whipped the Chicago White Sox, 10-1, but insisted (1) he wasn't interested in records and (2) isn't sure this is the best stretch of pitching he's had during his career.

In fact, Perry didn't even mention the AL mark of 16 consecutive victories shared by Hall of Famers Joe Wood, Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove and ex-Detroit star Schoolboy Rowe. The record he discussed was the "family mark" of 387 victories he and brother Jim have compiled which surpasses the total achieved by three Clarkson brothers at the turn of the century.

The Boston Red Sox defeated the Oakland A's, 5-3, the New York Yankees beat the California Angels, 6-4, the Detroit Tigers downed the Texas Rangers, 7-0, the Baltimore Orioles edged out the Minnesota Twins, 4-3, and the Kansas City Royals scored a 4-3 13-inning triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers in other American League games.

Perry, who has won 11 straight since losing on opening day, yielded six hits and four walks while striking out four. The Indians clinched the decision for him when they routed 10-game winner Wilbur Wood with an eight-run outburst in the fourth inning. Key blows of the innings were a double by George Hendrick and Charlie Spikes' three-run homer.

Yankees 6, Angels 4

Tigers 7, Rangers 0

Mickey Lolich, who had been struggling earlier this season, pitched a six-hitter for his eighth straight complete game and raised his season mark to 7-7 for the Tigers.

Orioles 4, Twins 3

Royals 4, Brewers 3

Al Cowens' single with two out in the 13th inning lifted the Royals to their win over the Brewers in a four hour and one minute struggle. John Mayberry walked with two out in the 13th and Richie Scheinblum singled before Cowens delivered his game-winning hit.

Frazier Holds Last Scheduled Workout Today

Frazier's trainer, Eddie Futch, said the former heavyweight champion might work out again tomorrow in his North Philadelphia gym. Futch, who refused to disclose Frazier's weight, said the workout tomorrow "will depend on how Joe looks."

Frazier sparred four rounds Wednesday, two with Scrap Iron Johnson, and one each with Frankie Steele and Moleman Williams to bring to 90 the number of rounds he has sparred since opening training May 14.

Futch said Frazier, who will leave Saturday for New York, will be under 210 pounds for his rematch with Quarry.

BETWEEN ROBINSON, WINKLES

A Look At Cause Of Angels' Feuding

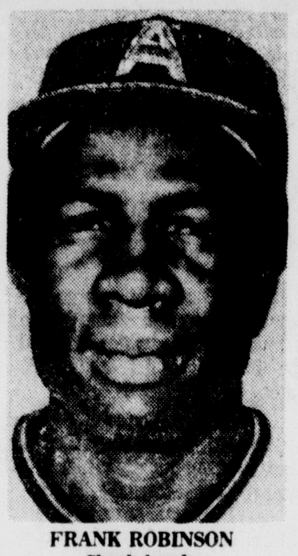
By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Winkles and Frank Robinson shook hands. They meant it.

That simple act, denoting mutual good-will, should've ended the entire problem right then and there. Actually it doesn't because life isn't that simple. Neither is baseball, and for that reason, the chances are somewhere along the line, perhaps much sooner than later, Harry Dalton will have to let one of them go.

It will be difficult for him when he does because he has a genuine affection for both.

All three men sat down in Dalton's hotel room yesterday morning trying to work things out. Bobby Winkles, the California Angels' manager, sat on the sofa; Frank Robinson, the club's most productive hitter, occupied one of the chairs, and



FRANK ROBINSON
Shook hands

There had been newspaper stories that a breach, a split or whatever else you cared to call it, existed between Winkles and Robinson. There were also stories the club was in turmoil, that Winkles' job was in jeopardy and that if he was fired he would be succeeded by either Robinson or Whitey Herzog, one of the Angels' coaches.

The three men in Dalton's room knew that at least one of those stories was true. Winkles and Robinson spoke to each other only when absolutely necessary. Winkles, in his second year managing the Angels, and Robinson talked to each other there in the room more than they had in a month. More, in fact, than they had this entire season. Each got in his side.

How can two guys be so hardheaded?

Robinson had the same idea.

He also got up and shook Winkles' hand, firmly.

"I think we got everything worked out now," the Angels' manager said after their meeting. "You know we're both kind of stubborn. There we sat like two old toad frogs simply because of a misunderstanding we had last September. It's all over with now, though."

As matters stand now, there is a possibility Robinson may be dealt before Saturday night's trading deadline. The possibility is not that strong, but it's there. The fact Robinson will be 39 in two months and makes $172,000 a year works against a deal for him. The fact he can still hit and could win a pennant for some club keeps his value up.

BOBBY WINKLES
No simple act

The New York Yankees are interested. They've offered Dalton a couple of their players for him.

The Baltimore Orioles, who had Robinson six seasons before trading him to the Angels three years ago, also are interested—up to a point.

Dick O'Connell says the Boston Red Sox also would be receptive, but only "if the price is right."

Winkles had gone to Dalton and asked him to trade Robinson this past winter, ostensibly as a result of a misunderstanding between the manager and his veteran superstar.

Robinson's side of the story is this:

"When I first met Bobby, the three of us, he, Harry and I, had lunch together, and he asked for my help. He assured me he'd accept my advice and it wouldn't bother him. I was very happy about it. I made it clear to him I wasn't after his job and I certainly wouldn't be working behind his back.

"Everything was fine, but near the end of last season in Texas, he called me into his office, and said he thought I'd been riding Clyde Wright, Rudy May and Mike Epstein too hard. He said he wanted it stopped because he didn't manage that way. He also said I'd been getting on the umpires too much and that I had interrupted a meeting at Kansas City, which I felt I certainly had not.

"I told him 'you're the manager—I didn't know I was riding Wright, May and Epstein too much, but if you think so, I'll stop.' And I did. He said he had talked to Wright and May and told them not to talk to me."

Subsequently, in a Minnesota hotel lobby, Robinson asked May if Winkles had talked to him about his riding him. May said no. That riled Robinson.

He sought out Winkles and said to him:

"You lied to me. I did everything I could for you. I busted my tail. and then you did this to me. Why? Why?"

Winkles insists Robinson was misinformed.

"I called both those guys (Wright and May) over in Texas and told them 'I don't want you arguing with Robby anymore.' Later on, I'm pretty sure Frank found out that was so. Truthfully, I don't mind the players going to him to ask him things. I don't think he has ever done anything behind my back."

Nonetheless, Winkles called a meeting in Detroit last week after Robinson had been quoted as saying the two of them weren't communicating anymore. Winkles said "there's going to be only one manager here and that's me."

Alternative Sought For 'Rozelle Rule'

NEW YORK (UPI) — If today's meeting between National Football League players and owners is going to produce anything more than the "good philosophical discussion" that came out of yesterday's meeting, both sides are going to have to come up with a novel alternative to the "Rozelle Rule."

So far nobody's suggested anything of the sort.

The players, according to the owners, rejected outright one "offer" and several alternatives for discussion in less time than it took to make them yesterday.

What the players basically want is elimination of the rule, which they feel inhibits their freedom by demanding that teams be compensated by another team when a player plays out his option and jumps. Commissioner Pete Rozelle makes the final decision on what is proper compensation and can thwart a deal if proper compensation is not made.

When the Players Association drew up its list of demands March 16, elimination of the 'Rozelle Rule' was number one. Elimination of the option clause was number two and elimination of the waiver system was number three. Those and others make up the "freedom issues" blocking settlement of a new contract.

The "offer" made by the owners yesterday was to substitute collective bargaining between the NFLPA and the clubs instead of individual salary bargaining — something which would obviously reduce the bargaining position of the better players. "That was rejected in 10 seconds," said owner representative Theodore Kheel.

"There's still a reluctance by the owners to get down to brass tacks," said Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers.

Kheel, speaking for the owners, feels the same way in reverse. He says the players have stated several grievances and made numerous demands but they've failed to offer working alternatives.

Ed Garvey, negotiator for the players, termed yesterday's session "a good philosophical discussion" in which both sides voiced their views more positively than in Tuesday's session or in the last one April 1. But Garvey reiterated the union's intention to strike July 1 if no agreement is reached.

Win By Philadelphia

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Philadelphia Freedoms saddled the Hawaii Leis with yet another loss, 26-17, last night in World Team Tennis action.

WFL Wrinkle: Seven-Point Touchdowns

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The World Football League made a touchdown worth seven points and replaced the extra point kick with an "action point" play last night in an attempt to put more excitement into professional football.

"There has been no suspense in football with the traditional point after touchdown being successful 99 per cent of the time," said WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson.

"Our new action point will provide a new and exciting element to the game."

The new rules, adopted at a meeting of the WFL's Board of Governors, provide seven points for a touchdown with the ball then being placed on an "action line" two and one-half yards from the goal line.

The scoring team may try to score the "action point" by running or passing. No kick will be allowed.

The WFL also adopted a new rule making the penalty for offensive holding 10 yards instead of the present 15 yards.

The governors, in other action, expressed a desire to expand to Mexico City, Tokyo, Vancouver and Toronto by the 1975 season, but to permit only one new expansion club in the United States in 1975. Prospective cities for that franchise include Phoenix, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Louisville, Ky., Syracuse, N. Y., and Charlotte.

The WFL also voted to honor existing valid contracts of the Canadian Football League, including the one-year option clause, as it has done with current National Football League contracts.

"I think we are ready to play football," Davidson said in his progress report to the governors. "Our progress is 100 per cent more advanced than we expected at this time and all indications are favorable for a most successful first year."

Reds Sign 2nd Choice Grace

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Michael Grace, 17, Pontiac, Mich., a third baseman and the Cincinnati Reds' second draft choice, has signed with the club.

Grace, who earned letters in baseball, football and basketball at Waterford Mott High School in Pontiac and who will be 18 tomorrow, hit .453 in 21 games with 27 runs batted in.

Grace is to report to Billings, Mont., of the all-rookie Pioneer League which opens its season June 25.

PLAYING CARDS TO PASS TIME

Boston Red Sox pitcher Juan Marichal yesterday played a game of solitaire after checking into Stanford Medical Center for a myelogram test. The examination may decide the baseball future for the former San Francisco Giants' right-hander. The test will show if Marichal needs a second disc operation to end the numbness in his pitching hand. Previously, Juan suffered from a lumbar disc. His current problem concerns a cervical disc. Top Indy Mechanic Blasts Auto Club

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The United States Auto Club is legislating itself out of big league auto racing.

George Bignotti, who has been chief mechanic for six Indianapolis "500" winners, made the observations in an interview here as he prepared entries for the Pocono "500" later this month.

He said recent changes designed to improve competitiveness and also help conserve fuel, coupled with earlier changes made in the name of safety and slower speeds were turning the fans away from races for the Indianapolis-type cars.

"I think you are going to have a lot of disinterested fans. The valve has run its time. The fuel shortage is gone. In fact, there never was one," Bignotti said.

"They (the USAC board which sets the rules) want to put racing back 10 years," he added. "Racing is trying to beat the other fellow by working harder, trying something different and being lucky. We might as well be racing stock cars, because that's what it's getting to."

Bignotti was embroiled in one of the controversies at the 1974 Indianapolis "500" when he installed a unique turbocharger unit on his car to be driven by Wally Dallenbach. The unit was larger and apparently capable of developing more horsepower than units used by other competitors. But it also apparently increased fuel consumption.

Bignotti wanted to make a change to a smaller unit, but was overruled by technical personnel for USAC. He later ironed out fuel consumption problems and used the same type turbocharger on defending champion Gordon Johncock's racer and Johncock finished fourth.

"Now they've voted that blower out," Bignotti said. "It depends upon who is on the board and his interests. They've pracitcally limited race cars to one specific blower. They make a lot of rules that are hard to police and as a result a lot of people are called cheaters."

He said he felt the USAC board acted without thoroughness in outlawing the blower within two days after the race here.

Bignotti also said USAC should improve conditions to regain support of sponsors who have stayed away from the sport in recent years.

He hinted the organization should drop its attempt to control speeds with the so-called "pop off" valve. He said a driver should judge how fast he wants to go. Such restrictions now have decreased the excitement of time trials and a chase for speed, he said.

PARIS (UPI) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden put his 14-match winning streak on the line today in the quarterfinals of the French open tennis championships.

But while Borg has been playing a lot of tennis, he has always managed to call up enough skill and stamina to win.

He stopped Californian Erik van Dillen 0-6, 6-3, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 Tuesday and then played two double matches Wednesday.

But leaving the dressing room the blond teenager said "I feel good" and that he was ready for Ramirez.

Since May 12 when he lost the World Championship Tennis (WCT) winners tournament final to Newcombe in Dallas, Texas, Borg has chalked up the win streak.

He won four Davis Cup singles matches for Sweden against Holland and Poland and then took six contests in Rome to win the Italian men's championship.

The other quarterfinal on today's card matched Harold Solomon of Silver Springs, Md., and defending champion Ilie Nastase of Romania.

Nastase lost to Borg 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in the final at Rome and says he has played too much tennis in the last six months to be at top form for this tournament.

Solomon's defensive game may frustrate the temperamental Romanian and Ramirez may score an upset, but if the experts are correct, Borg and Nastase should win and then meet in the semifinals in a rematch of the Rome final.

Sues To Stop Player's Jump

DETROIT (UPI) — The Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League yesterday filed suit in federal court here to prevent linebacker Sam Britts from playing with the Detroit Wheels of the World Football League this season.

Britts, runner-up for the CFL's rookie of The Year Award last season, signed to play for the Wheels Monday. Despite being in camp just two days, Coach Dan Boisture had all but conceded to him the club's starting middle linebacker spot.

The Eskimos filed the suit in U.S. District Court asking that Britts be restrained from "performing for any team other than Edmonton until June of 1975." They also sought a permanent injunction against the Wheels and a $200,000 judgement against the WFL.

Los Angeles Boxer Hernandez Triumphs

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Bobby Hernandez, 136, Los Angeles, scored three knockdowns last night in stopping Camillo de la Rosa, 135, Tucson, Ariz., at 2:26 of the eighth round of a scheduled 10- rounder at Circus Circus.

Hernandez had his opponent down for mandatory eight counts in the second and seventh rounds before putting him away with a straight right to the jaw in the eighth.

FORD

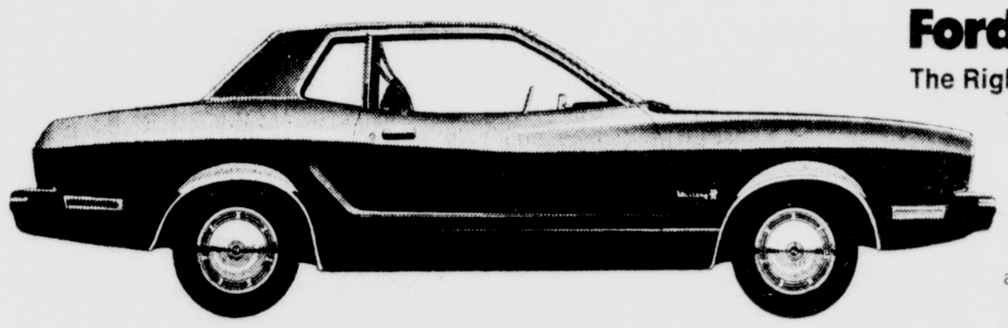
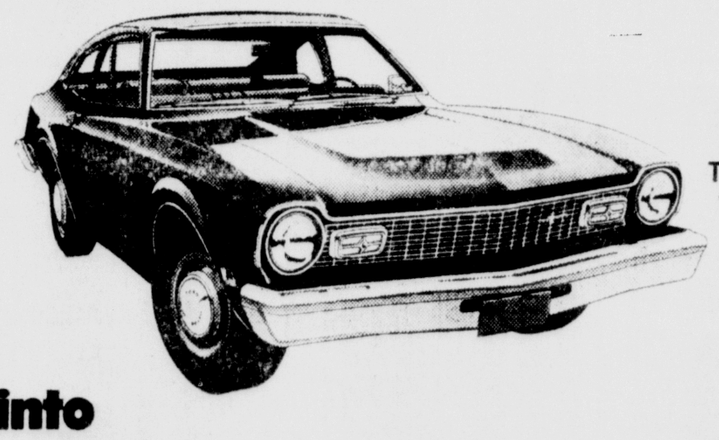
*Nobody knows more about small cars than Ford. Fact is, we've been building them since 1908, when we introduced the original Model T. That's why today Ford can offer the right kinds of small cars . . . in the right sizes . . . and at prices that make them the right kind of value, too. The result—over the last five years, your Ford Dealers have sold more small cars than any other dealers in America. By "small," we mean cars with wheelbases under 112.0 inches.



Ford Mustang II

The Right Car At The Right Time

An all-new car designed to meet the needs of 1974. For example, Mustang II gives you a choice of two economical engines: a standard 4 and optional V-6. Yet Mustang II is a little jewel. Never before have we put such luxury and comfort, quality and elegance into one small package. And it's even smaller than last year's Mustang. With all this and the impressive list of standard features, the base sticker price is surprisingly low.



Ford Maverick

The Family Compact Ford Maverick has always been the family car with an outstanding reputation for economy. And reliability. It's the compact car that's easy to service, easy to park, easy to handle and definitely easy on gas (regular gas). Thanks to its standard 200-cubic-inch, 6-cylinder engine. Ford Maverick, the compact car we build for families.

Ford Pinto

America's Basic Economy Car

Our back-to-basics, little economy car. Pinto's thrifty 2000 cc, 4-cylinder engine was designed to take you a long way on a little gas. You'll find everything about the Pinto is simple. Durable. Basic. With standard equipment like front disc brakes and rack and pinion steering. Maybe best of all, Pinto carries an exceptionally low sticker price. And what could be more basic than that?

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Generous Yield Of Chase Fund

Q. My broker has attempted to explain to me how Chase Convertible Fund works, but too briefly for me to understand. Would you try to straighten me out? — D. J.

A. First of all, Chase Convertible is a closed-end fund, which means that it has a set number of shares. These are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Thus, the price of a share is controlled by supply and demand, just as is a share of General Motors. The portfolio of this fund includes securities worth, at last report, $52 million. Of these, 62 per cent were convertible bonds, 16 per cent convertible preferred, 5 per cent Real Estate Investment Trust stock and the balance in straight bonds and short-term notes. Although the fund portfolio — net assets — is worth $52 million, the current market value of all its outstanding shares is $45 million. Therefore, the shares are said to be trading at a discount from net asset — 14 per cent — value. The fund has an above-average performance record and, because of the sizable concentration in convertible securities, should come back in price when the stock market as a whole turns. Meantime, the dividend at 6 cents monthly yields 8.9 per cent. Buy.

Q. I own 4,000 shares of Magnavox Co. (NYSE), acquired through splits over a number of years. Should I hold or sell? — V. B.

A. In view of the problems facing Magnavox, I would sell. Directors elected to omit the June dividend, which had been halved in the March 1973 quarter. Earnings had failed to meet dividend payments for eight consecutive quarters, although on a cash flow basis the dividend was covered. Five quarters of declining sales — resulting in part from the company's declining share of the TV market — resulted in a sharp drop in profits. In an attempt to regain its preeminence in this field, Magnavox moved into solid-state color TV sets. Expenses associated with the changeover, which ran into delays, further reduced profits. With consumer spending flat, earnings recovery is not expected this year.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Profits Usually Overestimated

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost everyone overestimates corporate profits, said Carl Madden, chief economist of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Poll results support his contention. One study showed that people believe the average manufacturer earns 28 per cent on sales, after taxes, when the actual profit last year was 4.7 per cent.

Madden blames journalists for some of the misunderstanding, but there is also reason to suspect that many corporate officers, who brag about their profits to some audiences, and scale them down to others.

Speaking to investment analysts, an executive is inclined to emphasize profitability. But for other audiences he may stress rising labor and material costs.

An extreme example of the dichotomy is that of a large corporation that recently declared a regular quarterly dividend, based on what it told shareholders was a solid profit for the year. But it reported a loss to the Internal Revenue Service.

Profits aren't simply explained. They may seem high in one quarter because they were depressed the quarter before. They may be due to extraordinary conditions that won't recur. They may indeed be huge, but only because the company is too.

But what seemed to bother Madden most as he talked prior to addressing The Conference Board, is that no matter what business does today, somehow a goodly number of people will categorize it as inimical to the public interest.

The air, he said, is "filled with conspiratorial philosophy that thinks business is a ripoff when really it is an engine of everyone's wellbeing," an engine of wages, pensions, dividends, fringe benefits, security.

Why are businessmen suspect, he asked rhetorically. "People forget that business is creative. Actors, dramatists and writers are creative," he said, "but the guy who produces a $100 calculator somehow isn't."

Suggesting that journalists contribute to the misunderstanding, Madden asked, how many of them know that among the 500 largest industrial concerns, as measured by Fortune Magazine, 21 companies showed a net loss on their sales. "Compare that with the 28 per cent profit estimate in the survey."

Madden is concerned also that the public doesn't understand that inflation exaggerates profits, adds to business costs, makes it difficult to replace worn facilities and inventories, and adds to capital-raising problems.

He deplores the widespread notion that somehow corporate income goes into the pockets of a select few instead of into dividends, wages, salaries, benefits, expansion. He appears appalled at results of a survey that shows 43 per cent believe the most practical way for workers to increase their living standard is to take a bigger piece of the pie rather than making a bigger pie.

Market Action Mixed In Very Dull Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — With hopes fading for a peaking in interest rates, stock prices were mixed in very slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Recent optimism that the worst is over in terms of soaring interest rates apparently has given way to caution, as no major bank appears likely to follow First National City Bank of New York in lowering the prime lending rate —the base rate charged on loans to top commercial borrowers —below the prevailing 11 ½ per cent level.
